200,000 MEN LOSE THEIR JOBS IN CHICAGO

SOCIALISTS IN GERMANY DEMAND PEACE IMMEDIATELY

SHUT DOWN WILL HURT ALL OF U. S.

Chicago, June 26.—A general shut down of Chicago's building industry, which, it was said, will throw out of employment more than 200,000 workers, went into effect today.

The shut-down is regarded by contractors and labor leaders as the beginning of "one of the greatest labor wars in recent years. The action was taken at a meeting last night of the representatives of the material interests, as an answer to the referendum vote of 16,000 carpenters, who overwhelmingly defeated the proposition to arbitrate all questions in dispute.

The carpenters have been on a strike since April 20, when their agreement with the contractors' employers' association expired. The men had demanded a wage increase from 65 cents to 70 cents an hour.

ASK ALL MEMBERS TO JOIN

Berlin, June 26.—(Via London).—The board of directors or managing committee of the social democratic party in Germany has caused to be published in the Vorwarts a full page appeal for peace.

This interesting document calls for peace, under certain circumstances which will make possible friendships with neighboring nations and it sets forth most clearly the opposition of the party to the conquest and annexation. The people want peace, it declares, and the government is called upon in the name of humanity to make known its readiness to peace negotiations.

This appeal is issued under the heading "Social Democracy and Peace." It begins with a reference to the fact that the Socialists foresaw the coming of the Langston, O., June 26.—After a session that extended until past midnight the special commission appointed by Governor Willis to look into charges against Superintendent Hastings of the Ohio Boys' Industrial School here resumed its sessions early today.

It was expected the testimony of all those subpoenaed by the state would be completed by noon today. It is understood members of the investigating committee will file their report together with whatever recommendations they make with Governor Willis.

Captain Hastings was the principal witness today. He gave his version of the incident relating to the removal of certain timber and its conversion into fire wood. He also went into details as to his reasons for discharging several employees including Joseph Geer.

"Vampire Woman" Won't Be Seen In "Devil's Daughter"

THEDA BARA

Cincinnati, June 26.—Theda Bara, former Cincinnati girl, now known the world over as "The Vampire Woman" will not be seen by the home folks here in her latest photo play masterpiece "The Devil's Daughter" on account of the fact that the Ohio board of censors has given orders that just 1800 feet of this film be chopped out before it is placed before the public.

Just what the censors' objections were have not been learned yet, but local moving picture men are going to give a private exhibition to which some of the city's most prominent citizens will be invited and it is probable that a protest against the censor board will be launched.

Miss Bara's real name is Theodora Goodman and her home formerly was in Avondale.

SLATON IS CHEERED AS HE LEAVES

Atlanta, Ga., June 26.—Twenty-six men were brought to the county jail here today by militiamen guarding the country home of Governor Slaton. The state guardsmen said they were arrested while trying to enter the governor's estate.

The men are being held on order of Major Hall, commanding the guard at Mr. Slaton's home. No charge has been filed against them by civil authorities.

Atlanta, Ga., June 26.—Nate B. Harris today was inaugurated governor of Georgia succeeding John M. Slaton, who six days before he retired committed the death sentence of Leo M. Frank to life imprisonment.

As Governor Slaton arose in the hall of the House of Representatives to make a short farewell address and hand over the state seal to his successor, there was a hostile demonstration in the galleries. It was quickly suppressed. As he handed over the seal with the remark that "During my administration this seal never has been abused," Governor Slaton was cheered from the galleries as well as from the floor.

Speedway, Chicago, June 26.—Resta won the 500 mile Derby with Porporato second. Resta's time was 5:07.36, fully 25 minutes faster than De Palma made at Indianapolis.

Speedway, Chicago, June 26.—Darius Resta won the 500 mile Derby automobile race on Chicago's new course today. Resta got the lead shortly after the hundred mile turn and kept it throughout the race, gaining every hour over his opponents.

Resta's average per mile was a trifle more than 98 miles. At 400 miles Porporato was only three minutes behind. Resta but had to stop at the pit to change tires. He was off again in thirty seconds.

The total of prize money will amount to about $64,000. The winner's share is estimated at about $20,000.

It is estimated that more than eighty thousand people saw the race. Crowds started towards the new course as early as seven o'clock in the morning despite the fact that heavy clouds were hanging over the city, threatening to break at any moment.

The race which was supposed to have started at ten o'clock was delayed a half hour to allow Bob Burman to replace a broken piston rod. At nine-thirty the parking space around the big oval was filled with automobile parties and the grand stand was filling slowly.

The new course has been extensively advertised as the fastest in the world and motorists from all over the United States and Canada were on hand to witness its opening.

A new competitive spend for 100 miles, it was announced early in the race, was made by E. Cooper at the rate of 104 miles an hour of eleven miles faster than the previous record held by DePalma. Cooper was in the lead at 120 miles, followed by Resta, Porporato and Van Ragatte.

At the 200 mile turn Resta was in the lead, followed by Cooper, Porporato, Grant, Rickenbaker, Van Ragatte, Chevrolet and Au.

DARIUS RESTA

CINCINNATI OFFICIAL CALLED EMBEZZLER

Cincinnati, O., June 26.—A warrant charging Roland W. Gooddel, paymaster of the Cincinnati water works department with the embezzling of $1,594.59 was served out in municipal court today by John A. Miller, general superintendent of the water works. The warrant was at once placed in the hands of the detective department and search for Gooddel was started. The warrants followed a conference between Service Director Fosdick and Dawson Blackmore, administrative superintendent of the water works today. Gooddel had been suspended Friday afternoon by Fosdick following a report made to him by Blackmore that Gooddel had confessed to him Friday afternoon that he was short in his accounts.

Gooddel when interviewed earlier in the day said: "My accounts are not short that I know of. I have not made a confession to that effect to Mr. Blackmore or any one else connected with the water works. I did not lose money at the Latorna race track. I will be at the water works office later today and the whole affair will be straightened out then."

DYNAMITE IS FOUND IN CANADA

Windsor, Ont., June 26.—Sixty sticks of dynamite, of the same size as those discovered last Monday morning under the Windsor primary after the plant of the Peabody Overall company at Walkerville, a suburb, had been dynamited, have been found near the plant of a motor truck company in Walkerville.

Police officials say they believe the explosive was hidden by some one who planned to wreck other buildings. A foreigner has been arrested and is being held for investigation.

CARRANZA PROMISES PROTECTION TO ALL

Washington, June 26.—State department advices today contained nothing bearing on the reported occupation of Mexico City by Carranza troops, but announced General Carranza's guarantee of protection for noncombatants in case of fighting there.

The department summarized its advice in a statement:

"The department received advices from Vera Cruz to the effect that General Carranza has given assurances that in the fighting in the City of Mexico, the interests of non-combatants, whether natives or foreigners, will be looked after. The department is in receipt of no definite report concerning the Carranza forces outside Mexico City, but it would appear from the meagre reports received that Gen. Zapata is preparing to offer some resistance with his artillery forces."

The opposing forces were reported in an artillery attack yesterday in which the Carranza advance was checked.

Consul Sullivan reported to the state department today in a telegram dated at Vera Cruz at seven o'clock yesterday evening that interruption of communication with Mexico City was due not so much to actual military operations as to the fact that the Zapata forces have destroyed the line.

WILL ARRAIGN 127 IN INDIANA JULY 7

Indianapolis, June 26.—Wednesday, July 7, was the time set for the arraignment of the 127 men, including Thomas Taggart, Democratic National Committee man for Indiana, Mayor Joseph E. Bell, and Chief of Police Samuel V. Perrotto, who were indicted here Tuesday charged with conspiracy to commit felonies in elections. The date was decided upon today at a conference between attorneys for the defendants and prosecutor Alvah J. Buckner. The defense counsel and the prosecutor requested that the trial be held as soon as possible.

Mr. Taggart appeared in the criminal court room where the conference was held, with the attorneys and urged that the hearing be held at once. It was announced that the defense has not decided whether separate trials would be asked.

DROWNED

Wauzon, O., June 26.—While approaching the Wabash crossing near West Unity last evening, on his return trip from Hamilton Lake, Attorney Donald Van Buren, of Cleveland, heard screams for help. Van Buren and Attorney Ford Brunner, also of Cleveland, who was with the former, left the machine and walked to the creek nearby. Boys who had been swimming informed the lawyers that one of their number had drowned. The body of Eddie Shable, 14, of West Unity, was recovered twenty minutes later by the attorneys. It had evidently been in the water for nearly an hour.

AMERICANS IN YAQUI VALLEY ARE ARMED

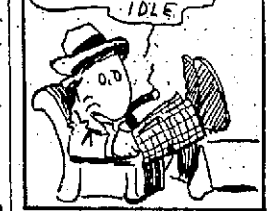

Tobari, Mexico, June 25.—(By Radio to San Diego, Calif., June 26).—American in the Yaqui valley are well armed with Springfield rifles and an adequate supply of ammunition and are ready to repel any future Indian attacks, according to advices received here today. Some of the Americans have arranged to hire other foreigners to assist in their defense.

The valleys of the Yaqui and Mayo rivers were reported quiet today. Rains have begun and are expected to cause a rapid rise in the Yaqui river. This will prevent movement of the Indians to the Mayo river southward, where there is an American settlement. The mouth of the Yaqui river was forty miles wide during the December floods.

The latest advices from La Paz, Lower California, stated that the town and vicinity had declared in favor of Carranza. It previously was declared "neutral." Guaymas has refused to receive La Paz shipping.

Want City Council To Place Daily License On Street Fairs

Petitions asking the city council to place a daily license fee on all street fair companies that visit the city made their appearance on Gallia street, Saturday, and were signed by quite a number of merchants.

When the petition is filed it will be presented to council, it was stated Saturday. Many merchants contend that street fairs hurt business because they attract many people to one section of the city for a week and then the companies depart with money that should be spent in local channels, the merchants assert.

Boy Scouts Invade Rarden; Strong Troop Is Organized

A strong troop of Boy Scouts was organized last night at Rarden under the supervision of Mr. J. F. Taylor, assisted by Scouts Howard Lowrey and Howard Graf, William Hopkins and Scout Commissioner M. H. F. Kinsey, of Portsmouth.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon a conference was held with the boys of Rarden who wished to become scouts at the public school building. Mr. Kinsey outlined briefly the teachings and the principles of the scout movement.

At 7 p. m. a big meeting was held at the M. E. church for the public. A big audience greeted Mr. Kinsey and the trio of boys of Portsmouth, who put on a splendid entertainment. The program consisted of music by Messrs. Hopkins, violinists; Lowrey, cornetist, and Kinsey, pianist. Howard Graf was the speaker of the evening, taking as his subject, "The Teachings of the Boy Scout Movement." The address was well received and did much towards enlisting the sympathy and co-operation of his audience. At the conclusion of the address, the new troop was formed, which starts out with a charter membership of 15 boys. Mr. J. F. Taylor will be scoutmaster, and a better selection could not possibly have been made as he is popular with the boys and has their respect and confidence.

The scout movement is getting firmly established throughout Scioto county, and the boys of the rural districts are being given an opportunity of participating in the attractive program which the Boy Scout Movement affords.

Ironton Manufacturers To Have Exhibits At Apple Show

Ironton's manufacturers have decided to have a big exhibition of their products on display at the Apple Show to be given in that city in September.

This will be an added feature of the Apple Show and practically every manufacturer in Ironton has agreed to take a liberal space at the show and reveal to the public just what their firm turns out.

The Ironton Irontonian says: "Among the manufacturing establishments that have thus far applied for booth space are the Belfont Iron company, the Mar- ting Iron and Steel company, the Ironton, Punch and Shear Works, and the Excelsior Shoe factory, if the shoe business improves as

Mr. D. C. Davies, president of the Excelsior plant, thinks it will within a very short time.

"The Chamber of Commerce will doubtless have a splendid exhibit of the products of the city and county, and data concerning the resources of Ironton and vicinity as a manufacturing center, and the prospects of the immediate future."

Masons To Spring Surprise At Millbrook Park Picnic

Portsmouth Masons, their families, and invited guests, are to be treated to one of the most agreeable surprises of their lives on the evening of the annual Masonic outing at Millbrook park, Saturday, July 10. The committee, of which D. A. Grimes is chairman, is arranging an entertainment for the evening that will surpass anything of similar nature ever attempted at the park.

The nature of the entertainment will be kept secret until that evening, which will make it all the more enjoyable. Heretofore, nothing out of the ordinary has been arranged on the evening of the picnic, the guests having been left to follow their own inclinations. But this year it is different, and the committee has no hesitancy in saying that that part of the day will be the most delightful of the entire outing.

The entertainment will follow the big picnic supper which will be served on the park lawn. That as usual, will be one of the big features of the outing.

Father will be arrayed against son in the afternoon, when the "Masque Dads" and the "Masonic Sons" take the field against each other on the ball diamond. Some of the older members, who electrified the crowds of thirty years ago by their prowess on the diamond are limbering up the kinks in their joints and muscles, and expect to take the field in perfect shape. The sons are emulating their example, and will contest with their dads every inch of the way.

The annual game between the "Ivory Knobs" and the "Bone Heads" will also be staged during the afternoon, while a game between the youthful sons of Masons is another athletic event of the day.

Athletic games and contests for the boys to the winners of which prizes will be given are also among the afternoon's features.

Iron Worker Praises Duffy's

Here's a case of a structural iron worker who suffered severe stomach trouble, but thanks to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey he is almost ready to resume his hazardous calling:

"For many weeks I was laid up sick in bed in the hospital with stomach trouble which gradually wore me away to a mere skeleton. The hospital treatment did not seem to improve me, so my doctor said I would not get well and told my people to take me home, as there was nothing any one on this earth could do for me. When I reached home my doctor ordered me to be fed on a tablespoonful of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey every two hours. After taking Duffy's for over one week, without another morsel of food entering my system, I began to have a longing for something to eat, and to my surprise found I could keep a little extra meal on my stomach, and gradually I regained my former appetite and felt better. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the cause for my present good state of health, and my doctor says I will soon be able to go back to my trade of structural iron worker. I am not afraid of the truth and hope others will benefit from the use of Duffy's the same as myself."—Thomas Seichel, 278 Tillary St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

may be relied upon in extreme cases where other foods are rejected. When taken as directed just before meals, it assists in keeping healthy the essential functions of digestion because it induces activity in the flow of gastric juices so the food you eat will digest naturally. This action on the digestive process is of great importance as it brings to all the tissues and organs of the body the nutriment necessary to their sustenance and indirectly to the whole system strength and vigor. It's a medicine for all mankind, and you, too, can

FREE COURSE IN PHOTO-PLAY WRITING

GIVEN BY THE PORTSMOUTH TIMES

In connection with the Columbia, Lyric, Exhibit, Arcana and Temple Theatres

There is a great demand for scenarios. The growth of the moving picture industry has caused the demand to be greater than the supply, and nearly all the manufacturers pay good prices for acceptable stories. Scenario writing has, therefore, become quite a craze. This is the ninth of a series of ten free lessons to be published in the Times, one each Saturday. The lessons are written by Lillian M. Rubenstein, formerly scenario editor of the Lubin Motion Picture Company. Read this ninth lesson, the short story, and read the other lessons to follow, and when the course is completed you should be a thoroughly competent photo-play writer and able to sell your work to the big producers.

List of Names and Addresses of Film Companies

Sterling Motion Picture Company, Hollywood, Cal., uses slap stick comedies featuring their comedian, Ford Sterling; also the Sterling Kide.

The Famous Players Film Company, 213-27 West Twenty-sixth street, New York City, will consider four reel scenarios of a modern nature and a broad domestic appeal. This company is willing to pay unusually good prices, providing the stories are up to their standard.

The New England Motion Picture Company, 76 North street, Winter Hill, Mass., are in the market for dramatic scripts in one or two reels and for good full reels and split reel comedies. They do not want costume stuff at present or stories which require real Western scenery.

The Biograph Company, 407 West 15th street, New York City, can use any style scenario containing novel situations; melodramas with thrilling climaxes are especially desired. Farce comedy will also be considered.

Kellogg Film Company, 126 West Forty-sixth street, New York City. Strong dramas and comedies.

Thomas A. Edison, 2890 Decatur avenue, Bedford Park, Bronx, New York. Good American dramas dealing with present day events.

The Kalem Company, 235 West Twenty-third street, New York City.

The Movies

At The Exhibit

Walter Edwards is starring in "The Hostage of the North," a two reel dramatic feature being offered at the Exhibit tonight. The picture is an admirable one all the way through. There is an abundance of action, plot and romance all the way through. You don't dread the heat when you come to The Exhibit. There are plenty of fans to keep the house cool and good ventilation all the time. Special music, a big program and a small admission make it the most popular house in the city.

Giant King Python Which Carries Theda Bara in "The Clemenceau Case" Brought Especially from the Bronx Zoo, With Its Keeper, for the Production.

The giant king python, with which Theda Bara, as Iza, toys in the most striking scenes of "The Clemenceau Case," which is to be presented at the Sun Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, as pictured by the Pax Film Corporation, William Fox, president, from Alexandre Dumas' famous play, is the largest of his kind in captivity and was brought especially from the Bronx Zoo to "play the part." Director Herbert Brenon is an intimate friend of Raymond L. Ditmars, the curator of the reptiles of the Zoo. Mr. Ditmars, after much persuasion and consultation with Director Hornaday, decided to allow Mr. Brenon the loan of the great snake. But, in handling a python is an exceedingly risky proposition, his snake-ship was accompanied by a keeper of Hindu origin. The trip to the studio was made in an auto and some excitement was caused on the way down Broadway when the snake managed to wriggle out of his big hampers and wave his head above the tconneau. Men sitting from cafes fled back as they saw the alarming vision and Mr. Brenon shrank modestly to see side of the car. But Dat Gangis, the Hindu keeper, played a few soft notes on his pipe and the snake snuggled obediently back into the hamper. Miss Bara bravely allowed the snake to coil itself about her while the shrill notes of the Hindu's pipe sounded. Everything went through without a hitch, except the snake, that was tied in a double one; but Miss Bara declares that her most anxious moments as a picture star were passed as she felt the heavy coils of the monster reptile wrapping themselves about her.

This photoplay has been stamped by critics of the country as Miss Bara's best production.

At The Arcana

The Arcana has a great program tonight, one that should interest the children as well as the grown-ups. There will be a two reel feature depicting the great war struggle now going on between the warring factions in Europe. Actual battles will be reproduced, while you can see a big Russian dreadnought blown to pieces when it comes in contact with a German submarine. This war picture is a gigantic one and said to be the most vivid and startling ever taken on the historic battlefields of war-torn Europe. The troops of all the warring countries are shown in review and it will be worth one's time and money to see the same. Remember the price is only five cents. Come.

At The Scenic

The big headliner on tonight's special program at the Scenic is three reel feature drama "The Hermit of Bird Island" with Earl Metcalfe in the leading role. It is a feature that no movie fan can afford to miss. Tom Mix in "The Grizzly Gulch Chariot Race," a scizzingly funny western farce comedy will close the show. In making up your mind as to where you are going tonight, you had better decide on the Scenic as this show is your one best bet in the movie line tonight. You had better come early.

At The Pastime

Much favorable comment is being heard on the new style of pictures being shown at The Pastime in Scitoville. The management is hooking such stellar productions as produced by the Vitaphone, Lubin Kalem and Bison people. They are all among the leading producers of the world and have only high-class attractions.

The headliner tonight is a Bison two-reel picture entitled Bond Sinister. Then there is a one reel Lubin comedy entitled "Who's Who?" The big comedy feature of the evening, however, is a Vitaphone, entitled "An Affair for the Police."

The Pastime is always cool and comfortable. The pictures are shown in the open air, and there is plenty of room for all.

5c at Temple Theatre

Tonight at the Temple theatre is a beautiful romance of the early '50's, entitled "At the Stroke of the Angelus" played by Charles Clary, Francisca Billington, Edward Warren, Anna May Walhall and Wilbur Higby. The third reel is entitled "Life's Staircase," a beautiful drama of memories played by Webster Campbell and Neva Gerber. The fourth reel is "Ethel's Romance" played by Fay Tincher, Bobby Foulcher, Chester Withey and Edward Dillon.

WHITE CORDUROY FOR SPORT HATS

White corduroy is much used for sport hats this year, two made of this material being shown in the above photographs. One has a rolled brim and is trimmed with a band of white gros grain ribbon, flat bow on the side. There is a suggestion of the shepherd in the dip of the brim of the second hat. A button-trimmed gros grain band serves as the only trimming.

EVERYBODY SEEMS TO FAVOR TRACKS OVER NEW SCIOTO BRIDGE

Further discussion of the project to lay steel rails across the new Scioto river bridge while the cement floor is being laid will take place at a joint meeting at the court house Monday morning at ten o'clock, to be attended by the county commissioners, the Good Roads Committee from the Board of Trade and the Retail Merchants' Association, and representatives from the Portsmouth Street Railway and Light Co.

All three parties to the discussion are strongly in favor of the plan, the only point at issue being the method of doing the work and the financing of it.

The law will not permit the county commissioners to use county funds for the work, even though the amount would be paid back later. Either the Portsmouth Street Railway and Light Company will go ahead with the construction of the track, or the local civic bodies will finance it.

This will probably be determined after the matter has been threshed out Monday.

The county commissioners have gone on record as being opposed to the granting of a franchise right across the bridge at this time. That may mitigate against the street railway company doing the work, although it is not certain. However, the present agitation, it is thought, will hasten traction communication between the city and the West Side.

Some question has been raised as to whether the bridge was wide enough to permit of railroad tracks being laid in the roadway, but Engineer A. T. B. Somerville this afternoon stated that the space between the cars and the edge of the bridge would be wider than the space on Chillicothe street, between the car and the curb. He added that the bridge was plenty wide enough for the car tracks.

Boy Must Remain Away From Orchard

The hearing of Hobart McDaniel, the Madison township youth against whom an affidavit alleging delinquency was filed in juvenile court last week by his uncle, Lincoln McDaniel, was held before Juvenile Judge Beatty Saturday morning. Several witnesses corroborated the statement of the complainant that the lad maliciously cut his fruit trees, killing some of them.

Judge Beatty administered a stern lecture to the youth and exacted a promise from him that he would remain away from his uncle's orchard in the future. Pending good behavior, the boy will be allowed his liberty.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

Portsmouth citizens become so accustomed to hearing about dirty alleys, dilapidated buildings and alley houses that should be torn down, and similar matters that come up when a growing small city is getting out of the swaddling clothes class and into the real city crowd that they are liable to lose sight of the many good things of which this "Peerless Portsmouth" can boast. This fact was very forcibly impressed upon us by an experience recently when we had the opportunity of securing an unbiased opinion of the city.

We had the pleasure of meeting Judge Geiger, of Springfield, and his charming wife, when they were at Maple Grove, enroute to Portsmouth on an automobile tour. It was evident they regarded Portsmouth as a rambling "river city," dirty, unprepossessing, without enterprise, and harboring some pretty dangerous inhabitants. This impression had been gained largely by Judge Geiger who a score of years ago had visited in the city and still retained hazy recollections of the place.

As we had been claiming that Portsmouth was the best little city in the country, bar none, when Judge Geiger changed to air his views during a general discussion, we naturally came in for a considerable amount of joshing.

We dared to point out some of the many good things about the city, in advance, but trusted in general to the visitors' own initiative in securing information about Portsmouth.

Naturally it was with considerable interest we awaited the verdict, after they had spent an afternoon and night in the city and had reached Maple Grove on their way back home. It would have done any loyal citizen a lot of good to have heard Judge Geiger's comments.

"Say, I liked your town of Portsmouth, very much," he said. "I was never so surprised in my life. You have a real little city down there. I liked your business houses. When I walked up that street from the Washington hotel and saw those splendid wholesale plants, big furniture stores, etc., I began to wonder what kind of a city it was."

"The favorable impression grew as I turned out the street to the north and saw your fine retail stores."

"Then when my wife and I walked out what I learned was Gullia avenue, and saw those handsome residences, your fine school building, impressive looking churches, etc., I turned to my wife, and said, 'I was never so surprised in my life.'"

"We commented also on the great amount of paving we saw. I don't believe I saw a street that was not paved. Another thing I noticed was that your streets were free from obstructions, in which you are ahead of my own town, and of course I think Springfield is as good as the best."

After considerable discussion along the material side of the city life, Judge Geiger brought up the scenery, and was enthusiastic concerning the views down the Scioto valley and the beauty of the Kentucky hills, etc.

Altogether Judge Geiger was most favorably impressed with Portsmouth, and as his remarks were made publicly to the group of citizens from various parts of the state who had been "joshing" us, we could not be blamed for swelling up like the famous pointer pigeon.

All of which leads to the reflection that it might be a good thing for all our citizens to look about for the many fine things in Portsmouth, and to lose no opportunity to herald them abroad.

ONE OF THE STRAWS.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company authorized on April 6th, the issuance of $5,000,000 in preferred stock. By the terms of issuance stockholders of the company had preference in taking the preferred, provided they exercised that preference before the first of July. With a week to go on yet stockholders have taken up over half of the amount and this will be largely increased before the period of preference expires. More than that, certificates of rights-to-purchase, issued to stockholders, have gone to a fancy premium, sometimes ranging up to forty per cent.

There is your condition knocking theory into a cocked hat. Fellows have been ranting and roaring around that Democratic free trade had ruined the iron industry, and here are people liking the sort of ruin wrought so well that they are, instead trying to get their millions out of the industry actually rivaling with each other in haste to put more millions in. For, mind you, the Youngstown industry is neither hunting, nor piker in the iron world. It is capitalized "way up in the millions and has one of the largest plants of its particular kind in the world, employing thousands of men. Backing the activity in its financial affair must lie not only future confidence in its future prosperity, but the known solidity of the immediate present.

OPEN THE GATES.

The Columbus press is making an insistent demand that the price of admission to the state fair be reduced by just one-half, from fifty to twenty-five cents, and that is reasonable for Columbus and by a rare coincidence by just one-half—it is surprising it does not demand the gates be thrown wide open and free.

And why not? The fair is an institution out of which the capital city gets all the direct profit. Much ado is made about the educational value thereof to the agricultural interests. And, no doubt, a considerable number get knowledge and inspiration from the exhibits. If more persons from the farm could be induced to attend by reducing or eliminating the admission price, it would be a reason to make it at least as good as that of making a cheaper holiday for Columbus and her suburbs.

Athens has an industry she is proud of, because of her alleged pre-eminence therewith. It is the boarding house. With it, during this month, she absorbed without an effort, two thousand school marms and a few hundred males. Whether the pedagogues assimilated with equal ease what the boarding house offered them is an other matter.

"I will give the subject of suffrage careful and conscientious consideration." So said Senator Warren G. Harding when confronted by a flying squad of suffragettes. Which the same is alliterative and ambiguous and slides the shy Senator out as amiably as an answer would allow.

After awhile it will get so every politician can have a secret society of his own and be the sole "it" therein.

Just whisper it. No rain for five whole days.

WE'LL SHOW HIM, B'GOSH.

A STRIKING CONTRAST.

President Wilson has chosen Robert Lansing to succeed William J. Bryan as secretary of state.

It would be hard to present a greater contrast in the rise to official honors than is offered in the careers of these two men. If Bryan has not over sought the limelight he has always basked in it. He attained to the distinction of secretary of state because of his notable party service and his conspicuous in the agitation of public issue, which is in no sense reflecting upon his capacity for the position. He had, probably, more personal and powerful friends than any other Democrat in the country and so, as they say in politics, a strong pull. On the other hand Secretary Lansing's service to the party has been ill in so far as it has brought him any prominence, or as it is generally known. Though a Democrat, he entered the department of state during a Republican administration. Quickly he made himself quite indispensable therein, acquiring an unusual knowledge in national law and developing striking skill as a diplomat. His rise was a promotion on merit alone, since he had no influential political alliances, few, indeed, knowing certainly what party he held allegiance to.

His case is but an illustration of how true it is that America is the land of opportunity. No matter where a man is located, or in what pursuit engaged he will find the door leading upwards always open.

CERTAINLY MOST UNCERTAIN.

To use an overworked illustration, eighteen thousand people and more packed themselves in Madison Square Garden, New York, Thursday, like sardines in a box, only they stood up instead of lying down, as sardines do, to hear, frantically, William J. Bryan on his discourse on "Peace." As many more squirmed, twisted, shaved and crowded in a vain effort to get in.

It was as great an ovation as "the peerless leader of the plain people" ever received and the spectacular part of it was that those then cheering him loudest were the ones that, for years have "cussed" him the harshest. There is just this about it, if you will: There isn't anything as uncertain as a dead certainty, and there is always room for the horrible suspicion that the other fellow may be right and you wrong.

Just as guarantee that the investigation of the Lancaster reform school will be fair and non-partisan, our good Governor appoints the chairman of a Republican committee to conduct it and Ed Follington, his political adviser, to get up the evidence and handle the charges.

The sweet and otherwise graduates having had their say, the newspapers are now handing back some wholesome advice to them. We reckon newspapers and graduates talk nobler and perform more ignobly than any other team.

Tourist: It is doubtless untrue that California got up that earthquake Tuesday to advertise its exposition. The shake was "way down at its toe, while the show is located about its stomach, if we may so express it.

The whole world is pretty much alike. Up in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, public officials are also issuing proclamations that the speed ordinances must be obeyed. And the speeder keeps on speeding.

The Marion Star believes in President Wilson's foreign policy and stands straight along side of him, even if its editor is a Republican United States senator. Caution and courage are admirable, especially so in politics.

Three Americans, charged with counterfeiting Mexican money, have been released from Chihuahua jail, it is supposed on the ground there can be no crime in imitating that which is valueless.

Bryan is going to make a tour of the country in advocacy of peace. In other words having written it serially he is now going to talk it on the installment plan.

Not much stock is taken in the proposition that Bill Bryan and Gussie Gardner hire a hall and talk it out.

New York, June 26.—Since Stove Brodie took his famous chances—and got away with it all kinds of bridge and near-bridge jumpers have essayed Brooklyn span. Magistrate Harris has just decided that it is no crime to jump off Brooklyn bridge, unless the intent is suicide.

The ambition to become film stars lures most of the bridge jumpers. One mechanic gave up his job and time here the other Sunday and leaped off the bridge to death. There was something pathetic in a more recent case. A twenty-one year old youth yearned to be a hero and make his mother proud of him. He leaped, hit the water and came up safely. But the police grabbed him.

The court discharged him, but the movies will have none of him. Hard luck—but his failure deserved wide publicity. The desire to do something out of the ordinary is worth cultivating, but not to the point of desperation.

Broadway's most recent wheeze, bruited about by the sidewalk comedians, deals with the wonderful advance in surgery and the most recent famous operation. Jess Conway, of the Herald, pulled it. Here goes: "The most famous surgical operation was the Lansing of the Wilson cabinet." Conway got away without being mauled.

The Ford car wheezes were supposed to be of a more or less recent vintage, but they have become extremely tiresome. Franklin P. Adams, however, has made the discovery that Sir John Falstaff was the first to grow weary of the automobile jargon.

What said he in Act III. Scene 5. "I have had Ford enough; I was thrown into the Ford; I have my belly full of Ford." Pursuing his investigations further, Adams discovers that in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" the Weber-and-Fields dialect seems to have originated. "I will description the matter to you," says Eva. "If you be capable of it."

And later: "It is a very discretion answer."

Down at Forest Hills—where Boardman Robinson built his famous house—the tennis court wags are having a lot of fun out of a man named Agutter, who has opened up a shop to tune raguettes. Writes one: "Of all the gutters with whom I have dealt, Mr. Agutter gutters better than any. Mr. Agutter's gutter gutters description."

In other words: there is guts to Mr. Agutter's guttering. I am not straining you either. Mr. Agutter does that."

Kitty Gordon and Evelyn Thaw are both singing a song called "There's a Little Spark of Love Still Burning" in New York theatres. Broadwayites are wondering if it means anything in the reconciliation line.

Don M. Allen, the newspaper man, once had a burning ambition to be a foot-dragging tragedian. His father, at that time was manager of the Chase Theatre in Washington. It was with great joy that Allen's father took him around behind the scenes to see Richard Mansfield. The great actor was in a temper and seeing Allen on a trunk, strode over to him, foot-dragging fashion, and said in a deep, throaty voice: "Young man, what are you doing here?" Before Allen's father had a chance to reply, young Allen was seven blocks away and going fast. It cured him of any desire to lragede after that.

A new popular simile: As rookless as the driver of an undertaker's aulo.

Golf

They do not know what golf may be Who call it childish play. To drive a globe from a tee And follow it away. They do not understand who scoff And all its virtues miss, Who think that this is all of golf, For golf is more than this.

For golf is earth's ambassador That comes to haunts of men, To lure them from the banking floor, The counter and the pen. To lend them gently by the hand, From toil and stress and strife, And guide them through the summer land Along the path of life.

The pastime of philosophers, For such a man must be, When far away the golf ball whirls And lides behind a tree. A man may see his business fall And never turn a hair, But men are strong who lose the ball And still refuse to swear.

It is a game of honor, too, That tries the soul of men; It's easy in the public view To all be honest men. But he deserves an angel's wings Who path of truth have trod, When left alone with but two things, His score card and his God.

If golf shall teach you patiently Adversity to meet, If it shall teach philosophy To keep your temper sweet; If it shall teach you still to grin With mirth no matter what, You are a victor if you win A loving cup or not. —From Golfers' Magazine, June, 1915.

Unlucky Day

"So you believe Friday is unlucky?" "Yessuh," replied Mr. Erasmus Pinkley of the Washington Star. "If I begin sumpin' on Friday it's liable to turn out unlucky; an' den, agin, ef I puts it off an' don't begin it one Friday, dat's liable to be unlucky, too."

The Gossip of Wall Flowers

Overheard at a dance, according to Life: "Don't you love to watch them? I never get tired of it. They say it's such good exercise—yes, it really is. But so few men lend well—Isn't she splendid! Her father just gives her ten thousand a year just to dress on. No, they never used to—out in; I rather like the idea, don't you? Isn't it funny how used we get to it? I remember it was only two or three years ago when there was so much talk about it in the papers—now everybody dances. Does Billy Sunday object? How funny!"

A Kind Act

Watch For Holes

Osborn's Announcement

Republican Electors of Portsmouth.

I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor of our city, and as I shall not be able to meet you all personally I take this means of announcing my platform which is PORTSMOUTH FIRST, LAST AND ALL THE TIME, standing upon my record of nine and one-half years' service in your city council, of which record I invite the most critical inspection. If you honestly believe that by reason of my experience and the interest heretofore taken by me in municipal affairs I am better equipped than any other aspirant for that nomination to administer the office in the interests of all our people, then it is your duty to support me, and I respectfully solicit your votes at the coming primary election. If nominated and elected I shall take up the office with no other obligation than to secure the best assistance possible and give our people the best that is in me for good municipal government. Looking to the greatest good to the greatest number.

Geo. M. Osborn.

THE GARDEN OF EDEN.

There is much in the war news to recall the biblical, the mythical and the romantic. For instance, one reads that in trying to force the Dardanelles of French and British maneuvering on the famous plains of Troy, where the gods and demi-gods, Hector, Achilles, Priam, Paris, Ajax, Ulysses, Odysseus and others waged battle for the possession and favor of the fair and fickle, Helen. An expeditionary force in approaching Bagdad, the metropolis of perfumed Arabia; the famous capital of the Saracens and the fabled capitals of eight hundred years ago, who at the head of their ruthless hordes, rode headlong over Europe, defeating and slaughtering the power and flower of christiandom. Already this expeditionary force has entered the plains about Amra, where the human race first was settled and from whence it spread over all the known earth. This means, of course, that the troops are right at the Garden of Eden, from whence our first parents were driven. No angel stands with flaming sword to forbid them entrance therein, and even is one typified by the Turk with his shining scimitar, for, sad to say, the natives are not the terrors that fiction has painted them and they are offering but a feeble resistance to the British-Indo advance. So it may be that by this time the invaders are actually in possession of the Garden, since the last news, about a month old, they were right at the juncture of the Euphrates and the Tigris and 'tis immediately therabouts that tradition locates the Garden of Eden.

We are sorry to see that Waverly is getting rid of that double-jointed bridge over the canal, immediately north of the Emancip House. To tourists it was the handsiest thing in Waverly because you always knew when you came to it that you were on the right road, whether going or coming. For a small town, Waverly is the hardest to get through of any place there is on the map, with its twisting, zig-zagging streets. They say that Senator Harding and his party wandered all over the burg in an effort to find the Portsmouth road, that time they came here to get-together with the rest of us.

Governor Hatfield is claimed to be a strong contender for Senator. That's probably, because his constituency is eager to get him away from the state as much as possible.

Nothing is so bad that it can not be worse. Having inflicted the germ theory upon us New England now wants to give us a post graduate course with the germ plasm.

Again we are puzzled. The Austrians claim to be running the Russians clear out of breath and yet Petrograd continues to lie with its customary abandon.

It isn't how the child is born, it is how it is "raised" that makes it. Heridity is mere bosh.

You never can tell what is going to happen: Just admire the long and sweet silence that remains unbroken about Oyster Bay.

It is pleasant to have the assurance that the means by which Marconi says he can see through a two foot wall is not an augur.

Unearthed Copper Penny

Herb Watson, a city water works employee, while working in a trench at Second and Court streets Friday afternoon unearthed a copper one cent piece of the date of 1821. He greatly prizes his find.

WEEKLY SUMMARY OF THE MARKETS

New York, June 26.—The movement of stocks this week was mostly uncertain with undercurrents of heaviness in the later dealings. Dealings were concentrated with slight gains in the better known issues, including United States Steel, Amalgamated copper and some of the more speculative in the district. CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

Chicago, June 26.—Notwithstanding that wheat showed strength at the start today, depression later prevailed. The bulge at the outset was due to higher quotations from Liverpool and to a forecast of unwelcome showers in the domestic winter crop belt. Buying, however, was only of a scattered sort and there was no sign of fresh export transactions. After opening 1/4 to 3/4 higher, prices receded to below last night's level all around.

Favorable weather had a tendency to ease off the corn market. Pil traders who appeared to be doing most of the business leaned noticeably to the selling side. The opening which was unchanged to 1/4 lower, was followed by a little rally and then a general decline. Oats sagged with other grain after a slight upturn at the outset. Buyers were scarce.

Provisions reflected the weakness of the hog market. Declines, however, were not severe.

No important rally took place in wheat. The close was steady at 1/2 to 3/4 net decline, 1/4 to 1/2.

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, O. Office Phone 99. Residence A-490.

Dear Dolly—Please tell me a nice present to get for a lady friend for a birthday present. We have been going together for a year, but are not engaged. She wants a drop lamp and I'm afraid she won't be satisfied with anything else. What shall I do?

YOUNG MAN.
If she wants the lamp I suppose you will have to give it to her to keep peace in the family. It isn't just the proper thing to do, but it would be better to please her than to please the world and convention. Young men who are not engaged usually give only flowers or candy for birthday gifts to their girl friends.

Harden, O.—Dear Miss Wise—I am a girl of 17, dark hair and gray eyes and considered good-looking. Now, Dolly, I want some good advice. Do you think I'm too young to have a steady? I have been going with a fellow for four years and every time I see him he says something about marrying. Please advise me; and what do you think of a boy making a date and then not filling it? Please, Dolly, give me a good receipt for a sponge cake and good way to make icing; and what side of a girl should a boy sit on when in church? How is my writing and spelling? Publish quick as possible in Times.

ANXIOUS KIDDO.
I answered your letter, or one just like it, about ten days ago, Blue Eyes. You are entirely too young to think about getting married. There's no harm in breaking a date if he had a good reason, but he ought to let you know, if possible, so you would not sit all dolled up in just why eggs are considered valuable, as food? A READER.

Eggs are blood-producers and that is one reason why. By eating eggs you get food for the muscles, sulphur and calcium for the system and some iron.

Dear Miss Wise—I have been going with a fellow for two years. He comes to see me twice a week and he says he loves me. I am now 15 years old and he wants to marry me. He takes me out auto riding and gives me nice presents, but he talks to other girls. Now, Dolly, do you think he loves me or not? Every time he comes he says he cannot live without me. Would you marry him or not? Please tell me what to do. BLUE EYES.

It is better to put each initial should a girl put on her linen—that is, if she doesn't care to put on both? BRIDE-TO-BE.
It is better to put each initial should a girl put on her linen—that is, if she doesn't care to put on both? BRIDE-TO-BE.
If you do not wish to take the time and trouble of doing this, mark the linen with the first letter of your name. If you are "Mary Louise Blank," and do not care to work "M. L. B." put on the "B." alone. I have known of girls who marked the linen for their prospective homes with their maiden names and added the initials of their new names after marriage. This is unnecessary, but you might do it, if you have abundant leisure.

Dear Miss Wise—Do you know your mother how to get rid of him.

LOCAL GERMAN'S VIEW OF THE WAR

By Major Lewis F. North, Former Editor of The Correspondent

Friday, June 25, 1915.

Momentous war events are chasing each other again in old Europe and remind us of the turbulent days when the German armies broke the lines and the frontier bulwarks of the Western Allies and won their first great victories at Muehlenberg and Lauscha in Lower Alsace, in French Lorraine, between Metz and the Vosges, at Charlot, St. Quentin and Maubeuge, when Hindenburg crushed two Russian armies aiming for Berlin at Tannenberg and on the Masurian Lakes in East Prussia and the Austrians after their victories at Krassitz, Samovitch and on the Drina in South Poland were advancing toward Warsaw but had to give away before the Russian avalanche and retire into Galicia.

Next Archduke Nicolaievitch tried for the possession of Cracow and Silesia on upper Vistula line, after the failure of which he turned to the Carpathians for a drive into Hungary, where he duly met his fate in the passes, on the Danube, the San and Visloka and a few days ago received the death blow at Grodek and Lemberg, which after almost ten months of Russian occupation and the establishment of a Russian civil administration passed into the hands of its rightful owner again.

It was the Tenth Austrian army masochs with the Vienna landwehr under General Von Boehm-Ermolli, which entered the Galician capital first after several days of hard fighting and after General Von Mackensen and the Austrian Archduke Joseph Ferdinand had broken the Russian front on the San and turned their flank on the Tanev by taking the Rawa Ruska railroad, their only communication to the north, cutting Nicolaus Nicolaievitch's army in two.

There was nothing left to the grand duke, who had entered Galicia with the finest and largest army which Russia ever had in the field, ten months before, but retreat on its own soil where the victors are following the demoralized Russians, who are trying to save the main army by hard rear guard resistance and are supposed to take up new positions on the river Bug, where they have a strong base at fortress Brest Litewsk, east of Warsaw, and can lean on the army in Eastern Poland if Hindenburg, who is said to be moving from the Rawa and Bzura again, will not disturb their circles.

The phenomenal success of the combined German and Austrian troops is best illustrated by the fact that Von Mackensen began his advance from Cracow into Western Galicia and Von Lindeinger his march to the support of the Austrians at the beginning of May, and in short six or seven weeks the big Russian main army has not only been totally defeated but so demoralized by its reverses that it will require many months, by Petrograde's admission, before it can be recouped and reorganized for a new offensive, which will give the Germans the long looked for chance to renew the offensive on the Western front and the Austrians the opportunity for undivided attention to their ally foe on the Isonzo. And we are almost sure to hear of important new movements in Southern and Northern Poland and in Courland, if the Czar is not forced to make peace by trouble at home.

"Traffic was suspended for nine days on the Holland-Belgian frontier to facilitate German troop transports to La Bassee and Ypres for reinforcement of the German lines. The British have thrown immense forces into this section and are conducting an energetic offensive, while the Germans confine themselves to the defensive," says a Rotterdam dispatch to the London Times.

The German war office reports a failure of General French to break the German front north of the La Bassee Canal with severe losses, while battalions were cut to pieces.

In Paris they had counted with certainty upon the success of General Joffres new drive at Arras, to support the British, but the French commander has not been able to even report progress, although that is the general tenor of his daily advices. The German lines at Arras and La Bassee hold firm.

London admits that the Allies are so fatigued by the terrific fighting in the last two weeks on their drive toward Lens and Lille in order to counteract the German-Austrian victories in the east that they have to recuperate. The Germans held the fort on Yser and Oise while their comrades in the east were fighting for Prunel and Lemberg, which was of equal importance.

Important German movements are also taking place around Nancy and Verdun, on the Woeyre plateau and in the Argonne. While French claim successes in the valley of Foch (Vosges) the Germans have taken the heights of De Sap, which command the St. Amand Mountain road in the same region.

The Italian Allies of the Triple Entente have made no striking advance, although their daily victory bulletins want to make us believe that they are half way to Vienna, neither on the Isonzo, nor in Tyrol (Trent) or in Carinthia, where all important positions are yet held by the Austrians, who are themselves ready to take the offensive, as reported from Verona, (Italy). At Plava on the Isonzo the Italians suffered a reverse before the strong Austrian works. So far they have neither sent reinforcement to the hard pressed Allies on the Dardanelles, nor to France or Flanders. May be England has not opened her heart wide enough. As yet neither Germany nor Turkey has declared war on Italy, although Austria is sure of their help. King Victor Emanuel is only half hearted in the bloody business into which he was forced by fear of a revolution.

Both in the Caucasus and at the Dardanelles the Turks are making good, their troops being still on Russian territory in the Caucasus, where five corps are operating. An attempt of the Russians to flank them north of Erzerum has been failed after an initial success of the Russians. A Turkish movement against Olbi (Batum we suppose) is under way again.

On the Gallipoli peninsula (Dardanelles) the French-British forces are held at bay on the southern point, Seddul Bahr, from where they have not been able to advance. The Turks select the night for their attacks, as then the Allies' warships cannot support their men in the trenches by their fire. The heat at the climax of the year, the burning sand and the want of water are serious handicaps to the British.

The British Admiralty announces that the cruiser Roxbury (10,880 tons) has been torpedoed by a German submarine but did not sink, also the freight steamer Tunisian, with 5,000 tons of wheat from Montreal to Hull, off Lowestoft. A number of steam trawlers met a similar fate.

In a conference of representatives of all the German states plans were laid for securing sufficient cereals to feed the people another year after the next harvest. In Austria-Hungary a grain monopoly has been established by the governments.

By an official statement of the Bavarian Staats Zeitung Germany and Austria on June 14, held 1,610,000 prisoners of war, 1,240,000 Russians, 255,000 French, 24,000 English, 41,000 Belgians and 50,000 Serbians.

According to an official statement the English army had lost 11,561 officers up to June 20th, more than she had in all at the beginning of the war.

Conditions in Serbia are fearful, says a correspondent of the "Petit Parisien," who has been taking notes in the Balkan states. At Nisch, the war capital, every the king was poisoned and stabiles the black flag.

The reports of Berlin and Vienna specialists about the ailments of the King of Greece have disproved the Paris stories that the King was poisoned and stabbed in a quarrel with the Queen, a sister of the German Emperor, over the national policy. His story will record them as the most malicious falsehoods ever uttered since Cain invented the lie.

The American Red Cross figures the losses of the belligerents up to date at over two millions. Every day the toll of blood is 10,000 dead and 23,000 wounded.

When a large French army fleet bombarded the open town of Kurlische, for which the Germans retaliated by their Zeppelin visit of London, the Queen of Sweden, who was visiting the aged grand duchess of Baden, took refuge in the cellar of the castle, where she remained all night with the women of the court.

The Russian government is now taking possession of all works and factories which can be fitted out for the manufacture of munition.

From the first to the middle of June the Germans and Austrians had taken 123,500 prisoners, 53 large calibre guns, 187 machine guns and 18 munition transports in Galicia. The captures around Lemberg have added some twenty thousand more men to this number. The booty of war material there was comparatively light as it had been moved before the surrender.

An attempt to institute a boycott against American wares in Germany in retaliation for the sale of war material to its enemies has been squashed by the chambers of commerce in Berlin, Hamburg and Frankfurt through the leading commercial papers, who argue that such would be worse than war as it would react against Germany in the future.

England is trying to place another enormous war loan of five thousand million dollars sanctioned by parliament without any questions as to the use of it. The times are not very propitious for it, but England cannot wait. She needs the money and her allies even more so.

The Russian loss of officers in the late Carpathian and Galician campaigns is enormous. Among the prisoners taken by the Germans and Austrians there is only one officer to every hundred privates. The others were left on the field. Russia has the reserves but where are the officers to train and lead them? And without efficient officers an army is only a uniformed mob.

The German victories in Poland and Galicia have put a quietus upon the grab craze in the Balkans. If they continue the Allies will have nothing to give away after the war and be glad if they themselves don't have to part with their own, principally Russia, which has been very liberal with promises all around. Besides the Balkanites are quarreling among themselves about the grab.

There is disharmony among the Allies. Petrograd says to the Westerners: "We saved Paris from Kluck by breaking into Prussia and threatening Berlin; why don't you help us to save Warsaw now?" "True enough," answer London and Paris, "but we can't buck an iron wall."

The German admiralty announces that brave Captain Von Weddigen, the submarine hero, who last summer torpedoed three British battleships at anchor, went under with the U. 29 when rammed by a British tank steamer flying the Swedish flag. There has been much concern in Germany over Weddigen's fate. If his ship had been lost in action with the British, as is claimed in London, the fact would have been hoisted to the world long before this.

The Paris Matin reproduces from a Spanish paper what the German Emperor is said to have written to a Bavarian courtier about peace terms. The emperor can neither talk war or peace without the Bundesrath (council of states) he can't get a dollar for war without the Parliament (Reichstag) and as to the terms of peace Austria-Hungary will have to say as much about it as Germany. Giving the Kaiser's due for the killing task forced upon him there is much written about his power which he neither claims nor enjoys under the constitution. In many respects he is far less independent than our president, and he certainly did not part with Bismarck as easily as did President Wilson did with Mr. Bryan.

England is no longer a market for our cotton as she is overstocked with it by her big seizures of cargoes for neutral ports, which is illegal as cotton is not recognized as contraband of war by international rule. We will have a large cotton crop this year which is to be moved within two months, and by Great Britain's arbitrary action of placing cotton on her contraband list the markets of Central Europe are closed to our shippers, which means ruin to the cotton growers of the South. Our government certainly has a case for action here.

Through the Paris Rothschilds and the Morgans of New York, France is about to negotiate a new war loan in the United States against American railroad securities now held by French banks. The New York Handels Zeitung says "Peace is coming and is going to bring the best times to the states they have ever seen. France is now unloading on us to save herself. But what will we do when our gold is gone and we need it?"

Italy is only taking from Austria what is hers, we hear from those who try to justify her invasion of Trent, Istria and the Crownland. Trent belongs to Austria since 1352, the Crownland since 1500 and Istria racially is two-thirds Slav and only one-third Italian. Trieste is to Austria what New York or San Francisco are to the United States because it is her main outlet to the Mediterranean, yet she offered to donate it to Italy and make it a free port. Italy has over-reached herself by refusing what Austria was willing to cede to her peacefully, recognizing the principle of nationality. She has a bigger task on hand than she has bargained for.

Ironton suffered another heavy loss by fire at an early hour Friday when a blaze started in a Greek shoe shining shop on Third street, near Center. As a result, the Bay buildings were badly damaged and the contents almost ruined. The loss is estimated at $10,000 partially covered by insurance.

Want To Adopt Pretty Little Girl

A pleasant, happy home is wanted for a little four-year-old motherless girl—a home where love reigns, the atmosphere of which will nurture the little girl to pure womanhood. The little child, whose mother passed away some time ago, is bright of eye, has pretty curly hair, rosy cheeks and a most lovable disposition. The father, who is honest and who loves the child with all the vigor of his manhood, is willing to resign all claim upon the child in the event that proper home be found for her. He insists, however, that the child be adopted by a couple 40 or 50 years of age and that said couple be childless.

The father is not able to rear the child as he would wish. He is away from home too much, and while he has done the best he possibly could under the circumstances, he realizes, nevertheless, that he owes a better home to his little girl than he can provide. Anyone desiring to adopt this child can secure full information by calling at the Times office.

U. S. OFFICERS BATTLE SERBIAN RESERVISTS, ARREST TWENTY THREE

Chicago, June 26.—Twenty-three reservists of the Serbian army alleged to be United States citizens either born or naturalized here today for appearance before United States commission for examination as to violation of the nation's neutrality.

The reservists were taken into custody by fifteen United States deputy marshals, as they were leaving with about 400 of their countrymen, for London, Ontario, last night. They were reported to join their regiments fighting with the allies. Other members of the party, which occupied seven coaches, were permitted to leave after the train had been delayed four hours.

The twenty-three men were delayed only after a riot which brought police to the assistance of the federal deputies. When the federal authorities boarded the train, the reservists began shrieking in the native tongue that German spies had attacked them. They scrambled out of the coaches and fought off attempts of the federal officers to arrest them. Police were obliged to swing their clubs on the heads of the Serbians before order was restored.

The investigators will probably file their report with the governor within the next two weeks.

"I know no judges who lack confidence in Lancaster. They are all highly pleased and protest against the crime of jeopardizing 1100 boys to secure a political scalp. Your removal would be as great a crime as was that of Colonel Adams. Discharge every disloyal employee. A house divided must fall."

These were the words in a telegram received by Captain R. U. Hastings, superintendent of the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster today from Juvenile Judge G. S. Addams, of Cleveland. The telegram from Judge Addams was in refutation of the charge made by J. H. Geer that Ohio juvenile judges are hostile to the administration of Superintendent Hastings. A telegram from Juvenile Judge E. F. Robinson, of Ravenna, said:

"As juvenile judge of Portage county, I wish to commend your administration as head of the B. I. S. With one exception, all of the boys I have sent to you have made good."

COLLEGE MEN GO TO AID IN RELIEF WORK

New York, June 26.—Two groups of college men leave here on steamers for medical relief service in the war. The largest of the groups, composed of thirty-five graduates of the Harvard medical school and seven nurses, leave on board the Holland American Line steamship Neordam for three months' service with one of the British army hospitals.

They expect to begin their work by July 4 and to be relieved by men from either Johns Hopkins or Columbia University in October. The other group, composed of eighteen students from Columbia University, six from Princeton and one from the University of Pennsylvania, with twenty-five Serbian interpreters and assistants, leave on board the steamship Themistocles. They constitute the Columbia University Serbian relief expedition bound for Nish, Serbia, and are sent by the Serbian Agricultural Society, the Serbian American League and by individual Serbians in America. They will distribute sanitation supplies; food and seeds to residents of the northern part of Serbia, which has been devastated by the war. Automobiles to be used in this work preceded them.

Dr. Harry Plotz, pathologist of Mt. Sinai hospital and discoverer of an anti-toxin for typhus, accompanies the expedition, carrying with him 20,000 tubes of the serum.

Jap Officers Kill Selves As Lemberg Falls To Austrians

Tokio, June 26.—Major Naka-jima and Captain Sushimoto, Japanese officers with the Russian army at Lemberg, committed harikari when the Galicia capital fell, rather than suffer what they considered the dishonor of being made prisoners of war, according to official advices received from Petrograd.

Harikari is a Japanese method of committing suicide, formerly widely practiced by military officers. In the days of the old Samurai system officers usually killed themselves when it became necessary to surrender their troops under them.

The visit of Governor Willis to the Lima hospital was the first one he has made there, either officially or otherwise, also it is only a few miles from his home in Ada. To friends he announced he was going to spend the week end with his parents in Delaware county, and only a few persons know of his intention to visit Lima.

After spending most of the afternoon at the new institution, during which time he made a complete inspection of the place, he returned to the home of his parents. As a result of his visit he is now in possession of information which may be used when the two commissions are brought together next week.

200,000 LOSE JOBS

By means of the shut-down of the employers, it was said, hope to prevent the independent carpenter contractors from obtaining supplies and thus throw out of work the 10,000 carpenters who are working under individual agreements.

Business in many parts of the country will suffer as a result of the shut down of this city's building industry, according to James Pryor, a member of the press committee of the employers. Mr. Pryor said he had telegraphed out of town concerns to cancel orders and to stop consignments already on the way to Chicago.

The shutdown will not become general for a week or more, it is said. In some cases, where it needed only the order to stop machinery it took place today, but in others, where perishable goods are handled there may be a continuance of work for several days.

Herbert Ballou, a carpenter contractor, was stabbed it is thought fatally, in a dispute early today with a man who contended that the carpenters' demand for 70 cents an hour was justified.

our sharp protest against every effort and every proclamation the purchase of which is the annexation of foreign territory and the oppression of other nations, efforts which have become public in Germany particularly through the demands of great economic associations as well as through the speeches of leading non-socialistic politicians.

"Even the recital of such efforts serves further to postpone that peace which is warmly desired by the whole nation. The people want peace—if it is war which daily demands sacrifices is not to draw itself out needlessly, to endure until the full exhaustion of all the nations in it, one of the participating powers must offer the hand of peace. Germany who attacked by greatly superior forces, has thus far victoriously defended herself against her enemies; brought their starvation plan to naught and demonstrated that she is unconquerable, should take the step to bring about peace."

"In the name of humanity and culture and supported by the variable military situation brought about by the bravery of our comrades in arms we demand for the government that it make known its readiness to enter peace negotiations in order to put an end to this bloody conflict."

"We expect our socialist comrades in other belligerent lands to exert their influence on their own governments in this same sense."

ALL EUROPE AWAITS GERMANY'S NEXT MOVE

London, June 26.—With a breathless expectancy which seems to be reflected in the pause at the present moment on both battle-fronts on the continent, the British public is awaiting the next move on the European chess board.

It is conceded that this move is Germany's and it may be made against either Warsaw, Paris or Calais. Some German activity has along any of the minor fronts. The been reported in the Argonne, which indicates a drive in the direction of the front along the river Isouze, while Belgian frontier may mean the transfer of veterans from the east to the front for another attempt to break through to the English channel.

Many persons believe, however, that no great offensive movement will be attempted along the western front until another effort has been made to reach Warsaw, against which position the Germans are said to be bringing big guns from Essen.

No great activity is to be noted along any of the minor fronts. The Italian claim to be engaged in a campaign in the direction of the front along the river Isouze, while Belgian frontier may mean the transfer of veterans from the east to the front for another attempt to break through to the English channel.

The closing part of the committee's inquiry was directed to the question of whether punishment administered by Captain Houser, the school's disciplinarian, upon Allen Bennett, 15 of East Liverpool, a second term, was too severe. Complaint was made that the punishment received caused an injury from which the boy had suffered since. Dr. Clouse, head physician of the hospital and Mrs. J. D. Garvey, the head nurse who examined the boy after he had been punished by Houser, said that the punishment did not injure him. Young Bennett, on the stand also testified that the chastisement did not cause his injury.

The committee concluded its inquiry early this afternoon. While the members did not give any authorized statement of what their findings would be they made it plain that no case has been made against Captain Hastings and that the investigation, instead of being detrimental to his administration, showed it up in a favorable light.

Training Schools Do Not Hurt Colleges

Columbus, June 26.—Organization of rural normal training courses in connection with first grade high schools under the new school code, has not detracted from attendance at colleges and universities, according to a report which Henry G. Williams, state normal school inspector presented today to superintendent of instruction, Frank W. Miller.

Williams declares only fifty of the 653 teachers and prospective teachers enrolled in the 31 county normal schools last fall said they would have gone to a college or other normal school if the county institution had not been organized. The slight expense of the county schools is the main reason for this condition, he reported. Attention is called also to the fact that the only cost to the state for maintenance of these schools is $1,000, the maximum amount of aid that may be given from the state treasury. The balance of the cost is borne by local school districts.

Most students attending the county normal schools are under 18 years of age, having just graduated from high schools. Only 60

Carranza Agent Leaves For Mexico

Washington, June 26.—Charles A. Douglas and Eliseo Arrandondo, representatives here of General Carranza, left today for Vera Cruz to confer with the first chief. It is understood that the object of their mission is to acquaint General Carranza with the viewpoint of the American government as outlined recently by President Wilson in his statement to the leaders of the various factions in Mexico demanding an early restoration of peace.

It was also understood that the Carranza representatives would endeavor to bring about a reconciliation by the Constitutional leader and the Villa-Zapata faction. General Carranza so far, however, has refused all peace overtures of General Villa. It is believed that Carranza's representative will tell him that he must show a conciliatory spirit towards his opponents before he can hope for the moral support of the American government. Official attention in connection with the Mexican situation was focused for the most part today upon the capital of the southern republic. With General Gonzales the Carranza commander and the Villa Zapata forces reported in an artillery duel for possession of Mexico City with telegraphic communication with Mexico City cut off, famine conditions there already growing worse, anxiety in Washington showed today.

person, in the order in which they are named. Resta's average at this time was 87.1 miles per hour for this distance.

At 260 miles the leaders were Resta, Porporato, Grant.

The race was started promptly at ten-thirty with Bob Burman at the wheel of his Peugeot. Haupt withdrew at 100 miles. A broken crank shaft at about the 200-mile mark forced the retirement of Limberg, without injury to either the driver or machine.

Resta's time for the 320 miles was 3:35.00. This compares with 3:19.32 which De Palma required to make 300 miles at Indianapolis. It was announced at the 200-mile turn of the race that Resta had broken the world's record for 200 miles at an average speed of 95 miles an hour. Exact figures were not given.

Resta, leading by five miles beat the previous world's record for 400 miles by 22 1/2 minutes. His time was 4:04.49, or an average of 95.03 miles an hour. Porporato was second, Grant third, the latter only 7 miles behind Resta.

Haupt whose retirement was announced, re-entered the race. At 460 miles it appeared certain that Resta's running accident, would win.

Porporato was only three minutes behind Resta but had to stop at the pit to change tires. He was off again in thirty seconds.

Columbus, June 26.—Governor Willis, accompanied by Adjutant General Hough, spent most of yesterday at the new hospital for the insane at Lima. Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys; they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jnd Salts from any good pharmacist; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jnd Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

NURSES IN NEAR MUTINY AT THE CITY HOSPITAL

Editorial Note—The Times, in its endeavor to be fair to all parties, this morning interviewed city officials in regard to the trouble at the city hospital and also interviewed the nurses and hospital superintendent. On the left of this page will be found the city officials' view of the matter, they taking the attitude the trouble is over. On the right will be found the views of the nurses and superintendent as disclosed to a reporter. Read them all and draw your own conclusions.

City Officials Say Trouble Over; Give Version Of Affair

A mutiny that broke out among the nurses of Hampstead hospital Thursday morning came near resulting in wholesale dismissals but just as suddenly as it started when the girls themselves pleaded to be retained and openly expressed regret for their hasty action, according to Safety Director Lake.

As a direct result of the sudden outbreak Mrs. Elizabeth Greer, of Kansas City, who has been serving in the capacity of maid at the hospital since January 1, 1915, has resigned. Miss Olive Potts, of Chillicothe, who has been appointed to succeed her.

The whole affair, officials state, centered around Mrs. Greer due to a breach between her and some of the nurses and because Miss Helen Lowe, superintendent of the institution, had upheld and defended the former. The clash reached its climax when all nurses excepting those on duty tied themselves to Mayor Adam Frick's home on Eighth street Thursday evening. Miss Lora Davis acted as spokesman for the delegation. She had not progressed far in complaining of alleged conditions at the hospital and in demanding the dismissal of both Miss Lowe and Mrs. Greer when the mayor interrupted her. He advised that since the nurses gained admission to the hospital through Dr. Joseph Lake, the director of public safety, and Miss Helen Lowe, the superintendent, they must complain and leave the institution through the same channel, that no one endeavored to hold them in bondage and that if by remaining they thought they were doing themselves injustice, they owed it to themselves to divorce their connection with the hospital.

The mayor also told them, he says, that if he himself were in personal control he would summarily discharge all of them. As soon as the girls left the mayor called up Dr. Lake and told him of the interview. That official hastened to the hospital. The nurses had not yet returned. He waited and when they arrived he promptly discharged them. They refused to be discharged, according to Dr. Lake, instead pleading to be allowed to remain, some with tears in their eyes begging for their positions. The director relented and that ended the trouble save that on Friday Mrs. Greer declared the girls had mistreated her and that she no longer wanted to remain. She accordingly gave up her position.

The director denied that any nurse had since been dismissed and declared Saturday that as far as he was concerned there would be no dismissal, that all was settled. He said he would ignore the statements directed against him by the Morning Star.

Hair Pins and Powder One Cause?

Thursday's outbreak according to Dr. Lake, grew out of a trivial matter, a nurse accusing Mrs. Greer of taking her hair pins and using her powder. She complained to Miss Lowe. The latter, according to Dr. Lake, tried to appease her by referring to the incident as a small matter and declaring that the nurses no doubt had at times used articles belonging to the maid. Another nurse is then said to have said, according to Dr. Lake: "She better not take any of my things for I'll slap her face." Miss Lowe took her to task for the remark, telling her in as many words that if she carried out her threat it would mean that she would be sent home, according to Dr. Lake.

The nurses held an indignation meeting among themselves and seemed to feel that the superintendent had unjustly sided with the maid as against them, says Dr. Lake.

The maid and nurses have had clashes periodically, it is claimed, she complaining that they would muss and disarrange the kitchen after she had finished her cleaning. Miss Lowe upheld her by insisting that the nurses keep the kitchen clean when they were using it, according to Dr. Lake.

Complained of Visits

To the mayor some of the nurses complained of what they termed the all too frequent visits the director made to the hospital. To this the mayor replied that he did not care a rap if the director visited the hospital a thousand times daily so long as duty required his presence there.

Mayor Frick and Director Lake both say also that one reason for the obstinate attitude of the nurses is the new rule laid down six weeks ago prohibiting the nurses from entertaining company during working hours. Heretofore, gentlemen friends were privileged to visit them both afternoon and evenings but the officials concluded the cottage was really intended as a rest room and that nurses who were on duty at night were entitled to sleep during the day time without being disturbed by piano music and singing. Accordingly company entertaining at the nurses' cottage has been limited to the hours of 6 to 9:30 p. m. The girls have not taken kindly to the new order of things, the officials say.

Advised By Doctors To See the Mayor

The trip to the mayor's home, the nurses admit, according to Mayor Frick, was made upon the advice of several physicians to whom they had aired their grievances at the hospital. The officials claim that after their return to the hospital the girls retracted their statements saying what they said was wholly untrue, done at the instance and advice of others and through a spirit of anger which they now regret.

Dr. Lake in speaking of the affair Saturday said that outbreaks among nurses were not uncommon and that two strikes had occurred among nurses at the time Miss Boyer was superintendent, but had been quickly settled.

More Pike Paving Was Opened Today; Cuts Out Bad Hill

County Commissioner Daniel Egbert, who was in the city Saturday, said that another section of the Chillicothe pike paving had been opened and it was now possible to cross the cement culvert just beyond the Five Mile church, thus eliminating the worst hill of the detour road. The remainder of the paving to the underground crossing will be opened in a few days.

Mr. Egbert says the temporary roadway is now in a very passable condition and it is being freely used.

GIVE BRYAN GOLDWATCH

Washington, June 26.—Employees of the state department yesterday presented former Secretary Bryan with an engraved gold watch.

Everyone in the department contributed to the fund with which the gift was purchased, and the presentation was made by Cecil Johnson, solicitor of the department. In accepting the watch Mr. Bryan said that he would treasure it particularly because he recognized that it was given as a personal token and not as "an expression of political attachment."

"I'm Going To Tell," Says Nurse.

"There is a whole lot back of all this, but of course I can not talk now but all will come in time. We know what our eyes have seen and our ears have heard and I don't care what happens to me I'm going to tell," said one nurse.

Another emphasized her anger by throwing things as she reached a service room declaring hotly: "There's one who won't stand for it and I have to go right now."

But when the reporter stepped up for details she "looked dangerous" and declared pointedly she would have nothing to do with the newspapers.

Don't Want Company.

Another nurse branded the claim of officials that one reason for their present attitude was the new rule prohibiting the keeping of company during working hours or afternoons as absurd. "We don't want any company, and only a few of the girls have gentlemen callers," she said.

Miss Lola Davis, who was the spokesman for the delegation that aired the nurses' grievances to Mayor Frick, politely informed the Times man that she individually had nothing to say; that matters were settled at least for the present time.

Miss Osborne admitted the truth of the story about her accusing Mrs. Greer of taking her hair pins and powder but declined to say just what the differences were between Miss Lowe and the nurses.

It was evident that although mutiny was suppressed and the nurses were looking after their duties as usual they were doing so in a rather perfunctory sort of way. They stood about in groups earnestly talking in low tones.

Only Three Nurses Sign Statement

It was also learned that Director Lake had prepared a statement for them to sign Friday in which they were to retract their statements to the mayor as nurses and uttered upon the advice and at the instance of others and done in the heat of anger and which they now regretted. Only three of the nurses signed the paper and then only on condition that it was to be torn up after being shown to the mayor and not to be published, it was stated to the Times.

Others flatly declined to attach their signatures to the paper they said. Further efforts made by the directors Saturday to have the nurses sign another statement in which they deplored their action also met with flat refusals.

Nurses Declare The Trouble Is Not Over; Superintendent Talks

While the mutiny among the dozen student nurses at Hampstead hospital is apparently settled or wished to be so regarded by city officials trouble is surging underneath and likely to break out most any time.

A Times representative visited the hospital Saturday morning for the purpose of inquiring into the situation and found unmistakable evidence that the outbreak of a few days ago is far from adjusted, and that the breach between the nurses and Superintendent Miss Helen J. Lowe, if anything, has widened.

Girls Are "Organized."

One nurse while declining to permit the use of her name admitted that the girls had banded together and were determined upon two things, the removal of Miss Lowe as superintendent or they would themselves give up their positions. The strike, she said, that had been decided upon, was likely to be inaugurated after Saturday.

The girls contended that they were in no way responsible for any publication of their troubles and would authorize no statement until the proper time arrived.

Several of the girls scoffed at the claims of officials that they had begged until tears for their retention after Director Jos Lake prepared to discharge them and also ridiculed the statements that the main contention was over differences between them and Mrs. Elizabeth Greer, the maid, who has since quit her position.

"I'm Going To Tell," Says Nurse.

"There is a whole lot back of all this, but of course I can not talk now but all will come in time. We know what our eyes have seen and our ears have heard and I don't care what happens to me I'm going to tell," said one nurse.

Another emphasized her anger by throwing things as she reached a service room declaring hotly: "There's one who won't stand for it and I have to go right now."

But when the reporter stepped up for details she "looked dangerous" and declared pointedly she would have nothing to do with the newspapers.

Don't Want Company.

Another nurse branded the claim of officials that one reason for their present attitude was the new rule prohibiting the keeping of company during working hours or afternoons as absurd. "We don't want any company, and only a few of the girls have gentlemen callers," she said.

Miss Lola Davis, who was the spokesman for the delegation that aired the nurses' grievances to Mayor Frick, politely informed the Times man that she individually had nothing to say; that matters were settled at least for the present time.

Miss Osborne admitted the truth of the story about her accusing Mrs. Greer of taking her hair pins and powder but declined to say just what the differences were between Miss Lowe and the nurses.

It was evident that although mutiny was suppressed and the nurses were looking after their duties as usual they were doing so in a rather perfunctory sort of way. They stood about in groups earnestly talking in low tones.

Only Three Nurses Sign Statement

It was also learned that Director Lake had prepared a statement for them to sign Friday in which they were to retract their statements to the mayor as nurses and uttered upon the advice and at the instance of others and done in the heat of anger and which they now regretted. Only three of the nurses signed the paper and then only on condition that it was to be torn up after being shown to the mayor and not to be published, it was stated to the Times.

Others flatly declined to attach their signatures to the paper they said. Further efforts made by the directors Saturday to have the nurses sign another statement in which they deplored their action also met with flat refusals.

Threats of Dismissal

Much of the renewed feeling exhibited Saturday it was stated was due to threats of dismissal the nurses declare. Miss Lowe made against them at breakfast. They charged that she said the mayor was coming out to "fire four or five of them." Coming as this did after the troubles had been considered settled the girls were strongly resenting it.

Director Lake while alive to the under-current feeling that prevailed did not believe there was any immediate danger of a strike or walk-out. He felt the young women had too much at stake to undertake such a step. He said some only had three more months in which to complete their courses and in the event they left would lose all of their time and not only could never be taken back but would be denied admission to any other hospital. He said it was his driving home of this argument to them Thursday night more than all else that caused them to reconsider their decision to leave.

Said Mayor Wanted To Fire Nurses.

He said that if the mayor and Miss Lowe had their way about it they would not tarry long but would dismiss the entire staff of nurses but he was opposed to such a course for he believed that there was only one or two disturbers who were agitating matters and inciting the others and that some outsider was behind it all.

Said Nurses Were "Sassy."

Miss Lowe was found seated in the hospital office wearing a rather depressed look. She did not mince words in discussing the new situation that is just now disturbing the peace of the hospital.

Miss Lowe said what hurt her most was the fact that the very one whom she had perhaps treated best of all had acted as spokesman during the interview with Mayor Frick and declared that she had talked with five of the older nurses and every one assured her, some amid tears, that they had nothing against her whatever and no complaints to offer, but had to follow the lead of the others.

Miss Lowe said the change that had come over the nurses dates from the time of the recent municipal probe. She said they have been acting "indifferent," refusing to obey her orders and talking back to her, although several are jolly sort of girls and have assured her afterwards that they did not mean to be talking back.

Wants Hospital Kept Clean

She said she had insisted upon keeping the institution clean and for that reason upheld Mrs. Greer who was a stickler for cleanliness. She said she would call their attention to crumbs on the floor or service rooms disarranged and tell them not to be sitting around until they had first finished the cleaning that was expected of them. Matters instead grew worse until she finally told them Thursday that it was dawned upon her that they had refused to obey Miss Boyer when she was superintendent and were now, also beyond her control. Either they must do the work expected of them and obey her or she would leave. Within a short time afterward whispered conferences in the hallways became the rule and that evening while she was in the office they dressed in street clothes and slipped out, going down town. The first she knew of the break that had come was when the mayor called her up over the telephone and asked what was wrong at the hospital, he telling her of the delegation's visit to his home.

Said Maid Was Cause of Row

One of the nurses on duty assured her, she said, that the only complaint she had was that Mrs. Greer, the maid, was running over her and the others until they did not know whether or not they owned their own souls.

Miss Lowe said she had sacrificed rest and pleasure herself in order to help the nurses frequently going on their time that they might take in boat excursions and the like. She said that in order to avoid danger of any gossip or talk she had put an end to the girls receiving company during the afternoons and had arranged to have the girls constantly entertained in their cottage. She had limited the calling hours to 10 p. m.

She herself had since the probe made it a point to receive Director Lake in the hospital office the door of which is never closed and never ventured away from it with him to any part of the hospital, ever since the last probe and branded as a malicious lie any report that anything unseemly had occurred between them.

Tells of Trouble With The Maid

Miss Lowe said that Mrs. Greer to Miss Osborne in the hallway began against her and rushing up to Miss Osborne in the hallway bawled her for doing so. She said Mrs. Greer told her that she did not steal her pins and powder, that she had sufficient herself and plenty of money to buy more if necessary and also said to her: "My comb and curling iron were not too dirty for you to use for you came into my room repeatedly after them." Miss Lowe said that when Miss Osborne remarked about using her pins and powder on her dirty hair and face another nurse asked her: "Why don't you slap her dirty fingers?" She said that she reprimanded them for their talk and reminded them that if they did anything of the sort that it meant they would march home.

Want To Get Rid of Mrs. Lowe

It was admitted by one of the nurses that the Mrs. Greer incident was singled out by them as the opening wedge of a plan to get rid of Miss Lowe. "We were awaiting something of the sort to bring matters to a head," said she. This nurse added that she believed that all that was holding their jobs for them today in the light of what has already transpired is the fact that they are protected by the civil service laws and cannot be removed save for cause and on charges that must be preferred.

Told To Leave The Hospital At Once

It was also learned at the hospital that Director Lake in summarily dismissing the nurses Thursday evening told them that they must leave the institution that very night and for them to call for their salaries on the first of the month. They demanded their pay then and there but the demand was refused. It is believed that this is one of the reasons why they returned to their places and that the first of the month may witness a crisis in the affairs of the institution.

DO IT NOW

Dr. J. N. Thomas of Lucasville, has decided to remodel his Colonial home, and he has commissioned Architect Arthur Davoss to prepare the plans for the remodeling.

Rev. Samuel Lindenmeyer, pastor of the German Evangelical church, stated Friday that the new Sunday school building his church is erecting, would not be ready for occupancy before September 15th.

Theo. Pierson is having a sleeping porch added to his new home on Ninth street. Contractor Robert Baker is doing the work.

Work was started Friday, re-roofing and otherwise repairing the Maier property on Second street, occupied by P. Frederick's meat market.

FRANKFORT DEFEATED 7-3; NEW CATCHER STARS

Third Straight Is Taken From Visitors; Teams Play Today

PORTSMOUTH sustained its enviable reputation for digging up good ball players yesterday as Johnson, the new catcher, made a splendid impression, in fact everybody was pleased with his first day's work except the Frankfort players, who met the third straight defeat, the score being 7 to 3.

In addition to catching a bang up game Johnson whaled a triple to center, a double to right and then chose a spot in left field for his single. The fans applauded him all the way and Johnson certainly had one big day of it. He developed the hitting habit right off the reel and to date is hitting at a 1,000 clip.

There was nothing to the game, but Portsmouth although in the early stages it was nip and tuck with Frankfort doing most of the tugging. There were a number of smart plays executed with skill and precision and the fine big crowd enjoyed every angle of the game. Portsmouth staged one of its famous rallies in the seventh and when the curtain dropped four runs had been scored on four hits and Frankfort was out of the running. The Old Taylors just backed up and pushed the balance of the way.

It looked like the Koutoukians might have one of their good days as they scored a run in the opening inning, but Larry Jacobus served as a stumbling block and the sum total of the visitors' batting amounted to five hits. Both pitchers worked well until the seventh when Craig, the lad with the auburn hair, let down perceptibly and was touched up for four runnings and then the stuff was off. Frankfort rallied in the sixth when they scored three of their five hits, but Jacobus was master of the situation at all times. The big Chameleon gave two games and hit a batsman, but his old curve ball was working all the time and he was never in any great danger.

For a starter Kimble drew a pass and went to second when he was caught between the sneaks and Spencer made a mad chuck to Caton. Spencer pitched and Jacobus got a double at the plate, but all hands were safe. Angermeier then stepped to Caton and Kimble beat his throw home. Dawson sacrificed, Sande going to third and Angermeier to second. Then it was that Outfielder Dills pivoted a beautiful double play, hauling in Briney's fly he returned the ball to Johnson in time to put Sande away. He attempted to score after the catch.

Caton was thrown out by Hoffman in the second but Bush cracked a double to right. He took third when Hoffman filed to Sande and scored a moment later when Johnson slipped a double to Johnson. The lad was being applauded as he stepped to the plate and without waiting he hopped onto the first ball and drove it past Angermeier for a half way stop. Jacobus was thrown out by Williams.

Caton in the fourth reached first on Johnson's error. Bush sacrificed and McHenry was thrown out by Johnson, but Johnson the local catcher lined one

CUBS GOING ALONG AT TOPSPEED

The Chicago Cubs have secured a good lead in the National league all because they have been able to beat the St. Louis team three games in a row. It really begins to look like the team that noses out the President crowd will win the National league pennant this year. The team is well balanced and has the hitting power.

HOME IN TERRE HAUTE

Noy Johnson, the new catcher's home is in Terre Haute, Ind. He has been playing scout-proof ball with the famous Washington-Grays of Washington, Ind. He was with the Owensboro, Ky., team in the little league for a short while last year. He looks every inch a ball player and should develop into one of the team's most valuable men.

EIGHT OUT OF ELEVEN

On the present home stay Portsmouth has so far copped 8 games out of 11 with one more to play with Frankfort. Two out of three were taken from the Charleston Senators, Frankfort defeated three times in the last week and Frankfort has been walloped three times in the same place. Small wonder that the team is generally regarded on the top rung of the championship ladder and is smiling down at the other teams with disdainful contempt.

SOME NAME, THIS

Up in Winnipeg there is a player who plays under the name of Ogden. We don't know whether he does or not, but the club has a name that is surely well suited for baseball. It is said the fellow is a cross between an Indian and an umbrella mender.

MADE SWELL PLAY

Caton and Bush pulled one of the best plays ever witnessed in Millbrook in Friday's game when Caton rushed over to second, scooped up the ball with one hand and converted it into a force out by losing the ball to Bush. The play had to be made very rapidly and it was executed perfectly by Bush and Caton.

NEW CATCHER STARRED

Catcher Johnson jumped into the fray Friday. He is already in good with local fans. Just ponder over what he accomplished yesterday. He secured a single, double and a triple out of four trips to the plate and was hit by a pitched ball. He drove in two runs and scored one himself. Johnson handled himself splendidly and it was work yesterday was a fair sample of what he can do. He should develop into one of the best receivers Portsmouth has ever had. Johnson has a good arm, caught Jacobus in fine style and dealt him a most sensational manner all round.

Back With Babes

Howard McGraynor, who formerly played with the Chillicothe club has returned to the Babe team. He joined the Babe team for the past two seasons had been with the Montreal team in the International league. McGraynor was sold by Chillicothe for a fancy price.

MANY GOING TO CHILLY

There will be a number of auto parties to Chillicothe Sunday.

Portsmouth fans always like to go to Paint Creek, O. and was familiarly with the cars carrying kids that take themselves seriously. When Portsmouth and Chillicothe meet the spectators always see a regular ball game.

THANKS, BAN OLD BOY

President Ban Johnson of the American league has been elected to the position of running Ty Cobb out of the league. Just about as much chance as Jawn D. has of becoming a pauper. Johnson has been after Cobb for writing articles about the American league team.

K. OF P'S. TO CELEBRATE

"HOME OF CHARACTER" No. 112

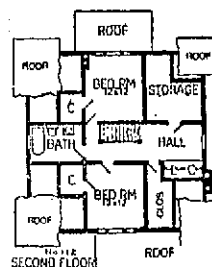

A Single and Clapboard Bungalow—By John Henry Newson

A bungalow of considerable width and suitable for any climate or location. The exterior is clapboarded to the top of the windows and painted white, the gable ends are shingled and stained brown, while the chimney and foundations are of stone. Simple roof lines and rounded porch give a restful, homelike air to the whole exterior.

FIRST FLOOR

The plan is simplicity itself. A large living room with fireplace at one end, a dining room and a convenient kitchen constitute the living portions of the house. Bedrooms, bathroom and stairs to second floor are off a small hall accessible from the living room and kitchen. The complete separation of the living quarters from the sleeping rooms in our bungalow plan has met with great favor. Both bedrooms and hall have ample closet space and the second floor is divided into one large room, but could be divided into two bedrooms and bath if desired, as illustrated.

SECOND FLOOR

Cost $2100. Can be built for from $1200 to $3000. Ask any question you please concerning these Homes of Character. Address letters to "Homes of Character Dept." The Times. Mr. Newson will answer free of charge.

Lesson XIII.—Second Quarter,
For June 27, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Ps. lxxviii, 65-72. Quarterly Review—Golden Text, Ezek. xxxiv, 15.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. C. M. Stearns.

LESSON I.—The resurrection, Matt. xxviii, 1-10. Golden Text, 1 Cor. xv, 15-20. "Now hath Christ been raised from the dead." In some respects the resurrection of Christ is the greatest event in all history, for had He not risen from the dead His life and death would have been no benefit to us (1 Cor. xv, 14-19). The kingdom promised to David needs an immortal man as king, one alive from the dead.

LESSON II.—David, anointed king, 1 Sam. xvi, 4-13. Golden Text, 1 Sam. xvi, 7. "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but Jehovah looketh on the heart." In the case of Saul, he gave the people a man after their heart, but now He chooses a man after His own heart (chapter xiii, 14; Acts xiii, 22), the most unlikely, humbly speaking, of all the eight sons, but the Lord's own choice, and He is still looking for hearts that are whole toward Him.

LESSON III.—The shepherd parable, Ps. xxiii. Golden Text, Ps. xxiii, 1. "Jehovah is my shepherd." Consider all the shepherd and shepherdess stories and then see the Lord Jesus as the good shepherd, the great shepherd, the chief shepherd and the shepherd who shall put forth all Israel and feed them in a good pasture (John x; Heb. xiii, 1 Pet. v; Ezek. xxxiv, 14, 16). Such a shepherd can never let His sheep lack any good thing.

LESSON IV.—David and Goliath, 1 Sam. xvii, 38-51. Golden Text, Rom. viii, 31. "If God is for us, who is against us?" Truly a fearless shepherd, to whom the living God, though invisible, was more real than the visible mass of flesh and blood in the form of Goliath. His great desire being that all the earth might know that the God of Israel was the true God and that His name might be honored and not reproached.

LESSON V.—Saul tries to kill David, 1 Sam. xix, 1-12. Golden Text, Prov. xxi, 26. "Whoso putteth his trust in Jehovah shall be safe." From the day that the women ascribed more glory to David than to Saul, Saul was jealous of him and sought to kill him, but God delivered him not into his hand (chapter xvi, 7-14; xxi, 14). Buck of it all the reason is seen in Saul's disobedience and in his allowing an evil spirit to take possession of him (xvi, 14).

LESSON VI.—Friendship of David and Jonathan, 1 Sam. xxi, 32-42. Golden Text, Prov. xxi, 17. "A friend loveth at all times." Consider how their souls were knit together from the day of David's victory over Goliath until David's exile to the desert. "Thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women" (1 Sam. i, 26). Yet such friendship was but a faint type of the love of Jesus Christ to us.

LESSON VII.—David spurs Saul, 1 Sam. xxi, 5-10. Golden Text, Luke vi, 27. "Love your enemies; do good to them that hate you." At least twice David had Saul wholly in his power, but refused to lay a finger on him to harm him. It was just the same on David's part when he was cursed and stoned by Shimei; he would allow no one to harm him, but just left him to God.

LESSON VIII.—David king over Judah and Israel, 1 Sam. ii, 1-7; v, 1-6. Golden Text, Ps. xxviii, 7. "Jehovah is my strength and shield. My heart hath trusted in Him and I am helped." In due time the Lord accomplishes every purpose of His, according to Jer. i, 20; Ps. xlii, 11; Eph. i, 11, and so David became king over all Israel and reigned on and grew great, and the Lord God of hosts was with him (v, 5, 10). Just as surely Jesus Christ shall sit on David's throne in due time.

LESSON IX.—David brings the ark to Jerusalem, 1 Sam. vi, 12-15. Golden Text, Ps. cxlvi, 1. "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go unto the house of Jehovah." The story of the Ark of the Covenant always suggests the presence of God and His provision of perfect righteousness for sinful man. I think it the most wonderful type of the Lord Jesus in the Bible.

LESSON X.—Nathan rebukes David, 1 Sam. xii, 22-24. Golden Text, Ps. li, 10. "Create in me a clean heart, O God." A sad lesson on the deceitfulness and desperate wickedness of the human heart even in such a chosen vessel as David. There is no perfect man in all the Bible story but Jesus of Nazareth, the Lamb of God with out blemish and without spot, holy, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners.

LESSON XI.—The blessings of forgiveness, Ps. xxxi. Golden Text, Ps. xxxi, 1. "Blessed is he whose transgressions are forgiven, whose sin is covered." How great and all sufficient is the sacrifice at Calvary which can put away transgression, sin, iniquity and guilt. Then it becomes our home to dwell in, where we are safe from all enemies and our guide through all the wilderness of this world.

LESSON XII.—A prayer for the tempted, Ps. cxli. Golden Text, Ps. cxli, 9. "Keep me from the snare which they have laid for me." He who forgives and saves is able also to keep and to guard even from stumbling. He is able to control the tongue which no man can tame. He is able to all who call upon Him in truth.

Thursday evening was a success beyond expectation. Everybody enjoyed themselves.

Women's Club Will Benefit From Success Of Chautauqua

As the time for the opening of the Chautauqua draws near the committee from the Federation of Women's Clubs is redoubting its efforts in the ticket selling and advertising campaign. After the guarantee is reached, one-half of the proceeds over that amount goes to the Federation, and the members hope to realize a tidy sum for their share.

This money will be applied to the fund for the maintenance of children's play grounds, the Day Nursery and the Anti-Tuberculosis Campaign.

Next Saturday morning the morning hour lecturer, Prof. Austin, will appear for the first time. The subject for the first morning is "The Mental Machine in Action." Mr. Austin is a man of wide experience and is very capable of talking on any of the subjects for which he is down on the program. He has traveled widely and was in Switzerland at the outbreak of the war.

The prelude for the afternoon is "The Kentucky Entertainers." The company is composed of Olive Robertson, pianist, Anna Christian Hayes, soprano and Mr. Spiegel, cellist. Mr. Spiegel studied under Franz Wagner the world's greatest cellist. Immediately following the prelude the story hour lady, Miss Heath, will take the children out for the first time. Indian and Russian songs will be taught the first afternoon. Miss Heath is a graduate of the Columbia School of Expression. Each morning from 8:30 to 10:00 and in the afternoon from 3:00 to 4:30 she will take charge of the children, telling them stories and teaching them plays of children of other lands.

At 8:00 Mr. Harry F. Alwood, recently appointed counsel for the City of Chicago and formerly sales manager for the Sheldon School of that city will speak on "Team Work and Business Problem." Mr. Alwood was also at one time traveling secretary for the United States Chamber of Commerce. These things have especially fitted Mr. Alwood for his subject.

On Saturday evening the well-known Ben Greet players will be here. Mr. Greet has selected "Twelfth Night" for the company to produce here. Little need be said for the Ben Greet Players. The Chautauqua people are much pleased with securing such an excellent group of players for this year.

The committee on the auto parade for next Tuesday evening is made up of the following ladies:

Mrs. C. W. Rowe, Miss Leonora Allard, Miss Alice Blake, Mrs. Howard Sellards, Mrs. D. A. Grimes, Mrs. E. M. Walker, Mrs. G. K. Lockwood, Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Harry Revano.

Tickets for the Chautauqua can be had of any of the members of the Federated Clubs or at Geo. Franks drug store, Hagar's drug store, Wurster Bros. drug store, Stewart's cut-rate drug store, Brandel's, Dressler drug store, Win Nye's drug store; the Red Cross Pharmacy, Fisher & Strick, Anderson Bros., Flood and Blake, Miller's drug store and at the Y. M. C. A.

One candidate, Emma Grohman, was elected to membership in the White Lily Council, No. 81, Daughters of America, at the regular weekly meeting Friday evening. She will be initiated with a large class at the meeting next Friday evening, after which a banquet will be served.

Mrs. Mary E. Boyles was elected as delegate to the District Council meeting at Ironton on July 7, which will be attended by representatives from twelve counties in the southern Ohio district.

Home From Trip
Dennis Rice, who travels for the Whitaker-Glossner Company, arrived home Thursday evening from a trip through Ohio.

THE GODDESS

By CHARLES GODDARD and

Novelized from the Photo Play of the same name produced by the

SYNOPSIS.

Professor Stilliter, psychologist, Gordon Barclay, Sammie and Sturtevant, millionaire, plan to preach to the world the gospel of efficiency through a young and beautiful woman who shall believe that she is a heaven-sent messenger. They kidnap the little Amesbury girl, orphaned offspring of a eugenic marriage, and conceal her in care of a woman in a cavern, to be molded to their plan as she grows up.

SECOND INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER V.

"So you are the little boy who is trying to find the little Amesbury girl," said Barclay.

Tommy Blue had never been in such a magnificent room. There were a thousand things to have drawn the attention of a sharp-eyed small boy. But Tommy never took his eyes from Mr. Barclay's eyes. This pleased the great man, who disliked people who showed fear or inattention.

"Sit down," he said.

Tommy almost disappeared into a leather arm chair that smelled vaguely of very expensive cigars.

"You were very fond of her, weren't you?"

"Yes, sir," said Tommy. "Can you tell me where she has gone?"

Barclay did not answer at once. "I understand," he said, "that you, too, have lost both your parents?"

"I live with my Aunt Sallie," said Tommy.

"Is she married?"

"Yes, sir."

"And has boys and girls of her own?" asked Barclay.

"Yes, sir, five."

"I understand that your aunt and uncle are not as rich as they might be, and that it is making a good deal of them to take care of even one extra mouth. Now I have a great big house and servants and good things to eat, and the only thing I haven't got is a little boy or girl of my own. How would you like to pay me a visit, and, if we find that we like each other, to live with me?"

"I should like," said Tommy naively, "to pay you a visit."

Barclay laughed heartily. "You shall," he said, "and you won't have to tell your aunt about it, because I have arranged all that. We thought perhaps you would be willing to come, and as she has packed up all your things and sent them here." He touched a bell on the great table in front of him, and almost instantly, and without any noise whatever, a man servant appeared in the room.

"Show Mr. Steele to his room," said Barclay, and, with a pleasant nod to Tommy, "I dine at half-past seven," he said.

Tommy lingered a moment. "You haven't told me," he said, "where she has gone."

Barclay rose and laid his hand almost caressingly on the boy's shoulder. "Tommy," he said, "your little girl has gone to heaven."

It was a very sad little boy who had been and dressed himself in an old suit, a little too small for him, and went down to half-past seven dinner, but he wasn't as sad as he might have been, for he was too young not to be excited and elated by his new surroundings.

Barclay did not patronize Tommy or talk down to him. He treated him in an offhand, matter-of-fact way, just as if Tommy had been his equal, so if the room had been a little smaller and the man servants fewer Tommy would have sooner felt at home.

When dinner was over Tommy sat on and ate nuts, while Barclay drank coffee and smoked a cigar. At about a quarter of eight Tommy went to bed. It was natural that he should feel a little sad and lonely with the unfamiliarity of everything, and that he should have one dream after another.

But they were all about the little Amesbury girl.

CHAPTER VI.

Mr. Barclay couldn't help being fond of Tommy, but in some ways Tommy proved an awful disappointment to him.

Adopted by the millionaire, his name changed to that of his adoptive father and brought up to be an aristocrat of wealth, Tommy had no interest in money except to spend it. I don't mean that he was especially wasteful or especially extravagant, but only that he took no interest in how the money had been gathered or how it could be made to work. He was much more interested in horses and boats and dogs and shooting than in any of his father's financial affairs.

Mr. Barclay did not expect too much of Tommy, and soon saw that what little he did expect he was not likely to get. But he was very fond of him and tried to make the best of him. Tommy spent all his leisure time playing polo or tennis or dachshund or on hunting trips, and some fourteen or fifteen years after this story opens he became very much interested in Miss Mary Blackstone.

He hadn't forgotten the little Ames-bury girl. He never would forget her, but what is the use of a little girl who lives in heaven to a young man who doesn't?

But Mary Blackstone did not live in heaven, did not wear a halo, did not string a golden harp or sit around and look as if butter wouldn't melt in her mouth. She lived in a low white house near Southampton, L.I. Tommy was on the most charming and intimate terms with her father, and there was one southwest room in which he spent many and many a week-end, and which was always known to the Blackstone family as Tommy's room.

Mary Blackstone rode horses, played tennis and swam in the surf as well as a strong and courageous boy.

If she liked Tommy better than anybody else she was in no hurry to say so. She didn't want to cut herself off from all the other young men, whom she liked almost as well, Carlton Fitch, for instance.

Carlton Fitch was Mr. Barclay's nephew, and in some ways was a great favorite of his uncle's. He took so much interest in his uncle's banks, railroads, mines, etc., that you might have thought that he expected to own them some day.

Outwardly he and Tommy were always friendly and polite to each other, even after they had become open rivals for Mary Blackstone's approval, but inwardly each had a certain contempt for the other and, in addition to this, Carlton Fitch was jealous of Tommy, for he had expected to inherit almost the whole of Mr. Barclay's money, and since Tommy's adoption it looked as if he was going to inherit very little of it indeed. He would be rich, anyway, but he was very greedy for power.

Mentally they were miles apart. Tommy, though he loved to spend money, was given to asking foolish questions about the ways and prerogatives of capital. He couldn't understand why the majority of people in this world have to be poor and dirty and unhappy. Why the real producer should have such a small share in what he produces. He did not go into these questions very deeply, but just enough to be something of a socialist at heart and to feel a certain contempt for people to whom the collecting of money was the most important thing in the world. Perhaps he only took up socialist ideas in order to amuse himself at the expense of those who maintain opposite theories, for he did not go into anything, except games, very seriously or very thoroughly. He did feel very strongly, however, that in a world containing so many able minds it was a shame that so much poverty and misery should be allowed to exist.

Mr. Barclay was supposed to be the greatest calculator of possibilities in America. As a matter of fact, he was a man who owed his greatest success to intuition. But in the case of Tommy Barclay, whom he had adopted, not after careful deliberation and calculation, but upon impulse, it looked as if he was going to be disappointed.

He had planned in complete detail a splendid destiny for Tommy. The boy was to be one of the world's greatest names and powers; its richest man. To the millions that he was to inherit from Barclay the Blackstone millions were to be added by marriage. Why, in case it ever developed that government by the people is a failure, when that government should at last collapse, as in his heart Barclay thought and hoped that it would, Tommy Barclay might aspire to be anything, a dictator, a king.

For a long time Barclay kept on hoping against hope, and attributed Tommy's failures and wrong-headed principles to his youth and high spirits. Then one day there had appeared an interview which Tommy had given to a reporter, between the chuckers of a polo game, and Barclay threw up his hands.

Talking with the wild carelessness of youth, Tommy had given it as his opinion that in the great coal mine strike in western Pennsylvania, then at its height, the miners were really fighting for their existence, and that the owners were oppressing them.

To Barclay such opinions uttered by his adopted son amounted to treason. And he had the impulse to abandon all those hopes which he had entertained for the boy's future, and he had abandoned them.

First, he sent for his nephew, Carlton Fitch. To this one he made no elaborate explanation of his changed attitude. He said: "Carlton, I want to see you married and settled down. You are said to be in love with Mary Blackstone."

A light seemed to glitter in Fitch's eyes.

"I'm afraid her father doesn't like me, uncle," he said, "and there is someone whom I think she likes more."

"Tommy?"

Fitch nodded, and Barclay smiled grimly.

"I will take care of Blackstone and Tommy," he said, "you take care of the girl."

Then he sent for Tommy. "Tommy," he said, "I'm very fond of you and you have been a bitter disappointment to me."

"I know it," said Tommy. "I can't help it. I'm made that way, but I'm awfully sorry."

"The bulk of my property," said Barclay, "will have to go to someone with more respect for property."

"Yes, sir," said Tommy.

"But you will always have plenty," said Barclay.

"Thank you, sir."

"That's because I'm fond of you, and because it's only just."

"Even if you are disappointed in me," said Tommy, "please don't stop liking me."

There was something very pitiful and manly about the boy, and Barclay was more deeply moved than he cared to admit.

"I shall always be fond of you," Tommy said.

Ten minutes later the great man wrote a few direct dictatorial sentences on a sheet of note paper and sent them by a special messenger to Mary Blackstone's father.

Senator Blackstone, a man with a large mouth, hawk-nosed face, and white side-whiskers, frowned heavily after reading Barclay's note; frowned heavily, heavily paced the floor of his library, gave vent to defiant mutterings, and then suddenly collapsed into a deep chair, as if tired, and read the note again.

Dear Blackstone:

Don't by any chance allow your daughter to have herself away on my adopted son. She belongs to the aristocracy of wealth. That aristocracy may one day become a nobility. Mary is fitted to wear the purple and to share the throne of the world's greatest empire. The world in which we live is pregnant with great events, and the week will go under. Destroy this.

Yours in haste, BARCLAY.

Mary Blackstone sat for a very long time staring into space. She didn't want to give up Tommy. She didn't want to give up all those wonderful possibilities that her father had talked about so solemnly after exacting from her a solemn promise of secrecy. Could it be true that the old order of things, a president entering to this vote and that, a congress continually throwing obstacles in the way of enterprise and efficiency, was to change all of a sudden? Her father said so.

"They have ground down the truck," he said, "only to find that they ground themselves down at the same time."

"Now the pendulum is swinging the other way. Gradually the trusts will regain what they have lost. What is the right agent? Greater trusts? Yes, but beyond that, staggering belief, or trusts of trusts. A trust in whose hands will be all the threads of business of a whole continent, and whose stockholders shall be the inhabitants of that continent. Poverty and degradation will cease to exist. The head of that trust may be called chairman, a president, dictator, perhaps he will be called king. And already the powers who believe in this coming change have such a man in their eye. He will not be the first king; he is very young, but he will be the second. After him, who? Why a son of his body, trained from birth to fill that great position. And you, my dear, if you wished, might be that son's mother, and wear a diadem."

And so she sat staring into space. And for the first time in her life she found that ambition is stronger than the mere wish to exist and have a good time.

A footman appeared with a silver tray on which was a white card. "Who is it, Benjamine?"

"Mr. Thomas Barclay, madam."

"Tell him," she said, "that I am not at home."

Tommy, sure of his welcome, had been told that Miss Blackstone was at home.

He drew a polished crystal and forced the girl to look at it.

home, and had leisurely followed the footman upstairs to the door of the little sitting room.

When he heard her say coolly, even coldly, "Tell him that I am not at home," he felt as if he had been struck between the eyes. And then anger seized him. For she had promised that she would be at home on that particular afternoon, and now here she was saying that she wasn't.

Of course there was nothing that he could do but turn and go. And, of course, he did these things.

When he was in the open air he drew a long breath.

"I'll get out of this damned city," he said, "and if she happens to want me for anything she'll find that I'm the one that's not at home."

We regret very much that we did not receive the FIRST chapter of "The Goddess" to show you last Monday as advertised—a shipping clerk's blunder at the film office caused the disappointment. Now we have arranged to show both the FIRST and SECOND chapters (4 reels) on next Monday—with the personal assurance of the manager of the General Film Co. that there will be no more disappointments. So unless the railroads quit business the first two chapters (4 reels) of "The Goddess" will be shown next Monday at Disarmed Him by Removing His Spectacles.

Like many other rich men, Barclay owned a hunting preserve in the Adirondacks, and seldom went near it. But the five granite mountains surrounded by dense forests thickly sprinkled with lakes was one of Tommy's favorite stamping grounds. It wasn't so much that he enjoyed killing animals or seeing how many fish he could catch as that once in a while he liked to be alone, and to keep alive and comfortable by his own exertions.

The preserve was real wilderness. One dirt road led from the railroad station at Four Corners to the main camp at the head of the biggest lake, but otherwise the region boasted only a few narrow trails. And you had to make your way from one landmark to another as best you could. And either you had to take plenty of condensed food in this or trust to your skill with rod and rifle to keep you from going hungry.

Tommy would leave the train at Four Corners, hire a team, and get himself put down somewhere along the road leading to the main camp. His kit on these trips consisted of a blanket, a frying pan, a kettle, a change of underclothes, a very tight 22-caliber rifle, a four-ounce fly rod, a compass, a pipe, tobacco, and a few other odds and ends, such as matches and salt and a pair of field glasses, and an Oxford book of verse.

One night a few days after Mary Blackstone had treated him on an evening, Tommy came on an enviable ground by the headwaters of a brook.

Just back of his shelter of balsam hedges a knob of granite stood up clear above the surrounding forest. Tommy always climbed the knob, because it was almost the exact center of the great ring, traced roughly by the five mountains, and afforded glorious views of them and of the low country, lakes, forest and swamp that intervened. It was Tommy's favorite camping ground. He would sit for hours on the top of the knob, his legs hanging over into space, gazing and dreaming.

On the particular night in question he climbed the knob after a fine supper of trout and ruffed grouse, filled a pipe and watched the day fade and the stars come out. What he enjoyed most was the sense of solitude, civilization, of course, was within reasonable reach in any direction, but Tommy did not feel as if it was. He felt as if there wasn't another human being within hundreds of miles. There were men at the main camp, only fifteen miles away, but he pretended that there weren't, and that he was in the heart of a vast unexplored country with no other white man had ever visited.

Presently the moon began to rise, and that always made Tommy mournful and sentimental. If he had been a dog he would have thrown back his head and howled. Being a young man he sighed and began to imagine that he and she (a romantic edition of Mary Blackstone with better manners and less worldliness) had come to this wilderness to escape from the outside world and to make their home. What fun it would be! How he would work to make her happy and comfortable! How easy it would be for them to get along forever without anybody else to bother them.

Just then his head fell forward on his breast, and he dreamed that he smelled boiling cauliflower. It was a smell to which he was particularly sensitive, and which he particularly hated. He waked with an angry start, and the smell persisted.

His offended nostrils quivered as the nostrils of a wild animal quiver at the smell of man. He was angry and disgusted. And his feelings for the people who had not only invaded his solitude, but had brought a cauliflower, more than one possibly, into the northern woods, were not fit to print. His only satisfaction was that in the morning he would hunt them down and tell them what he thought of them.

But he had a bad night, and when at last he did get to sleep he slept so heavily that daybreak didn't wake him. By the time he had washed and breakfasted, it was half-past seven, which in a camping hour in the woods was in a shocking hour in the woods.

He climbed to the top of the knob. Field glasses in hand, he began to search the whole landscape far and near for traces of human beings. But the woods were so dense that it was like looking for a needle in a haystack. What he hoped to see, and what he did presently see, was smoke, a pale amethystine column of it rising near the base of one of the mountains. To find the fire, or the remains of it, from which that smoke was rising would not be very difficult. He took his bearings very carefully. It was directly between him and the smallest of three barren cliffs which formed the first upthrust of the mountain, and as he judged about half a mile this side of the cliff. At the base of that cliff was a rattlesnake den, and Tommy was in the habit of giving it a pretty wide berth, for the snakes sometimes wandered long distances from their favorite lair in search of food and water, and a good woodsman like Tommy preferred that they should do their hunting in peace.

"Just like a man who would bring cauliflower into the woods to camp in snake country," he thought, "wonder if I can pick one up with these glasses."

He focused his glasses on the base of the cliff and amused himself for some time in trying to discern a snake. But either the distance was too great or there was none in evidence, and he was about to give up when suddenly a man walked casually into the field of his vision—and out of it.

"Well, I'm jiggered," said Tommy. "I haven't found a snake, but I've found the next best thing. Now what the devil is Professor Stilliter doing in this part of the world?"

Again he lifted the glasses and again saw the professor. He appeared to be polishing something on the sleeve of his Norfolk jacket. Now and then the something flashed brilliantly in the sunlight. It might have been a pocket mirror, or a great diamond. Whatever it was, Professor Stilliter presently dropped it into his pocket, forced his way into a dense clump of bushes at the very base of the cliff and disappeared.

Tommy was not to investigate those bushes at the foot of the cliff. He was within a quarter of a mile of them, walking swiftly and quietly along an old lumber trail, when suddenly his quick eye caught a glimpse of footsteps and at the same moment his quick eyes caught a glimpse of something white that moved. He stepped quickly into a thicket of alders, crouched low and to all intents and purposes was blotted out of existence.

Along the trail, his heavy baby face streaming with sweat, came Professor Stilliter leading by the hand a slim and lovely girl who carried her head like a princess. She was dressed in a white garment that fell in unbroken folds from her shoulders to her feet. Like a Roman god. On her bare feet she wore thin sandals, on her bare head a circlet of gold in which jewels flashed. Her mouth had an expression of celestial gentleness and smoothness, but her eyes, half shielded by their lids and lashes, were without expression. She seemed to Tommy like a girl, not of this earth, walking in her sleep. He had never seen a face so beautiful, so sweet or so touchingly innocent.

Having passed Tommy's hiding place, Professor Stilliter turned from the trail and led the heavenly vision to a sort of natural seat that overlooked a quiet pool from which Tommy had often taken trout.

She sat reflected in the pool, and looking straight ahead of her, and not seeing—if you know what I mean, Professor Stilliter had let go her hand and was tipping off, abandoning her apparently, but when he had gone a little way he turned and made curious passes in the air with his hands, and spoke suddenly in a voice of command, the one word, "Wake!"

Expression and light came into the great eyes, and she looked about her with a kind of startled delight. Tommy for some reason or other was trembling from head to foot.

A stick cracked. She turned her head toward the sound, but Professor Stilliter had made good his tipoff retreat. He was no longer in sight.

Then Tommy, still trembling with wonder and excitement, rose from his hiding place and walked slowly toward her. Their eyes met, and the vision smiled, the sweetest, most bewitching smile, and in the gentlest and richest voice that Tommy had ever heard she asked him an astonishing question.

"Are you a man?"

"Why, yes," said Tommy.

"Then," she said, "this must be the earth."

"Of course," he said, "you know that as well as I do."

"I wasn't sure," she said, "until you told me. You see I've just come from heaven."

"Oh, my Lord," said Tommy, "she's mad as a hatter. How terrible! And yet she looks sane."

"I'm Celestia," resumed the vision, "and I've come from heaven to make people better and happier. I'm to begin with New York. Where is New York?"

She looked about her as if she expected to find it somewhere among the trees.

"It is a long way from here," said Tommy.

"Then I ought to start at once. Will you show me the way, please?"

"Why, yes, of course."

Then Professor Stilliter came back on the run.

"What the devil are you doing here?" he exclaimed, "Now don't get angry, old chap. This is one of my patients."

"I'm not angry," said Tommy, "and don't call me old chap."

Then Professor Stilliter sank his voice to a whisper. "Her mind," he said, "is in an exceedingly critical condition. Now you just vanish, will you, and leave her to me. She hasn't to be upset."

"One condition of her mind," said Tommy, "appears to be fear of you."

Stilliter turned from him impatiently. "Come, Celestia," he said, "we'll go away now."

She shrunk from his proffered hand. "Celestia," said Tommy, "don't you want to go with him?"

"No," she said.

"Don't be afraid, then," said Tommy, "you shall."

"Tommy Barclay," said Stilliter, "you keep out of this or you'll get into trouble. Come, Celestia."

She did not stir.

In a flash Stilliter had drawn a polished crystal from his pocket and was forcing the girl to look at it. As he did so, he said in a tone of command: "Sleep, Celestia, sleep."

Tommy simply stepped forward and knocked the crystal from Stilliter's hand, and Stilliter turned upon him with a bowl of rage and attacked him with a shower of windmill blows. Tommy was no longer a small boy, but an athlete, in the early twenties.

He retreated slowly, guarding himself, and then, when he thought he had drawn Stilliter far enough from Celestia, he quietly reached in under the rain of blows and disarmed him. In other words, he removed those great black-rimmed spectacles without which the great psychologist was blind and helpless.

"Perhaps I'm doing wrong," said Tommy, "but that girl's afraid of you and I'll take a chance."

He darted to the girl's side. "Are you afraid of me?"

"No."

"Then come."

He led her back to the trail and along it.

Stilliter stood as if in the midst of black night, groping with his hands, lest he dash his face against a tree.

Tommy was not to investigate those bushes at the foot of the cliff. He was within a quarter of a mile of them, walking swiftly and quietly along an old lumber trail, when suddenly his quick eye caught a glimpse of footsteps and at the same moment his quick eyes caught a glimpse of something white that moved. Dressing Room At Sun Looted; Father And Son Arrested

William Bowman and son Floyd Bowman, of Fourteenth and Union streets, were arrested by Officers Roy Moore and Callahan Smith, Friday evening, for alleged looting a dressing room at the Sun theatre.

A search of the Bowman apartments in the so-called "Martin Box" tenement house produced a coat that was identified as the property of Julius Baesman, an attaché of the theatre, a pair of lawn tennis shoes, a military belt, some harps and other articles. Young Bowman, who is nineteen years old, was seen approaching the home just as the officers were starting with the father. He turned and ran towards the railroad tracks on Tenth street with Moore in hot pursuit. Bowman bolted through a lumber yard and into a box car but Smith met him on the other side, seizing him as he leaped to the ground. He had a full quart of whiskey in his hand. Father and son were locked up at the city prison.

The Bowman boy was one of a gang of young men convicted last winter of the wholesale stealing of lap robes from automobiles over town. A brother Ed Bowman was also arrested last spring along with a couple of other boys for stealing bicycles and abandoning them at Chillicothe after first cutting the tires.

When arraigned in police court Saturday the young man pleaded guilty to a theft. The father pleaded not guilty. Testimony of the son brought out that he and father had been asked to leave the theatre during the afternoon because they were drinking. He admitted later going to the dressing room and taking the articles and later turning them over to his father. He was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $100 and the father was ordered to appear on his own recognizance.

Suggest S. J. Pugh As Judge Candidate

In an editorial in the Cincinnati Times-Star, dated this morning, the name of Samuel J. Pugh of Vaneburg, is suggested as a candidate for the judge of the Sixth Appellate Judicial district of Kentucky. The Times-Star believes the fact, that with the time limit growing short for entrance in the primary, not a Republican aspirant has entered the lists. It claims that the day is long since past when a Republican who ran for office in Kentucky was necessarily regarded as a leader of a forlorn hope, and moreover adds that the judiciary is being more and more lifted out of politics, judges being selected for their individual qualifications.

Samuel J. Pugh served as a member of Congress from his district, and was also a member of the Constitutional Convention, making a fine record in each office. He is a man of excellent character, ability and integrity, long since past when a Republican who ran for office in Kentucky was necessarily regarded as a leader of a forlorn hope, and moreover adds that the judiciary is being more and more lifted out of politics, judges being selected for their individual qualifications.

ACKLEY BACKTRACKS
ON SUNDAY CHARGES

Another chapter in the famous Ackley "Expose" of Billy Sunday has appeared in the Philadelphia North American. Ackley in a signed article practically admitting he was intoxicated when he gave out his recent sensational articles. The North American in an editorial also gave alleged details of the affair.

Ackley's letter and the editorial follow:
Ackley Tells
About Affair

"Philadelphia June 19, 1915. 'To My Friends and the Public: Many of the things that recently have appeared in the public press with reference to my relations with and separation from Mr. Sunday and his party have been so distorted in matter of fact and manner of statement as to make them quite untrue, which are calculated to make an entirely false impression on the public mind.

"I have labored with Mr. Sunday for eight years, and he has always been to me a good and most valued friend. I would be both false and disloyal to him and the work he has been doing were I to consciously say or do anything either in disparagement of him or his work, and I never can forget how much I owe to him for his many kindnesses.

"I have never had any disagreement with Mr. Sunday or dissatisfaction with him, growing out of money matters; never offered nor suggested any agreement with reference to my musical publications. I have never charged him with plagiarism, or criticized his method or manner of preaching. Have never betrayed by word or deed anything within our confidential relations growing out of my secretarial services.

"However, in unguarded and almost unconscious moments owing to an unfortunate weakness and under very peculiar circumstances I may have said things which have been distorted with statements for which I disclaim responsibility.

"I believe most heartily in Mr. Sunday's sincerity and in the genuineness of his works and would be the last man in the world to knowingly put a straw in the way of his continuing success in the great work in which he is engaged.

"I am sorry if I have grieved Mr. Sunday or caused anxiety to those interested in his work and under the present circumstances I do not expect to be taken back into future work with him.

"I make this statement voluntarily without conference with Mr. Sunday or any committee but simply to do justice to all concerned and from a sense of duty to myself.

"B. D. ACKLEY."
Editorial In North American

"There may be a limit beyond which the liquor interests would not go in endeavoring to destroy an individual or a group of persons who have dealt effectively blows against their pernicious special privilege; but there is evidence that it has not yet been reached.

"Certainly the most recent attempt of the kind, the conspiracy to discredit the work done here by Billy Sunday, sets a new mark for malignity and repulsiveness.

"The public was startled some days ago by the publication of interviews purporting to have been given by one of the prominent members of the Sunday organization. While nothing in his alleged statements reflected in any degree upon the integrity or sincerity of the evangelist, assertions concerning other members of the party were calculated to disparage the whole campaign by supporting the liquor interests charge that it was essentially a commercial venture, designed to capitalize religious sentiment.

"These attacks gained publicity in a manner which gave evidence of systematic direction, and this fact was fully confirmed by exposure of the liquor influence behind the campaign of defamation. It became known that a Camden inn seller had ingratiated himself with a member of the Sunday organization who had been private secretary to the evangelist and had confidential knowledge of the arrangements. This man was selected as a likely subject of manipulation because of habits which he had overcome, but which still tested his powers of resistance.

"Both in Philadelphia and in Paterson the saloonkeeper and agent of the liquor interests sedulously cultivated the acquaintance of the Sunday side. In what manner and to what extent he played upon the man's unfortunate weakness is not known; but the latter says that it was 'in unguarded and almost unconscious moments' that he was led to make assertions which were 'distorted' into the interviews given to the press by a Camden newspaperman.

"So ambitious was the scheme of exploiting the indiscretions of a man whose sense of responsibility was paralyzed that a sensational article was in preparation for a magazine. The saloonkeeper even took his misguided charge to a newspaper office and prompted him to tell his story; but his zeal was fatal, for the man's condition was sufficient refutation of the eager rumrunner's tale.

"Finally the victim perceived dimly the use that was being made of him. He confided in a trusted friend and begged to know what had been going on. When he was told, his sense of decency and manhood asserted itself, and he insisted upon taking any course, however humiliating, to undo the harm he had unconsciously inflicted.

"In a public statement, therefore, he declared that alleged interviews with him, based upon remarks he might have made when not in full command of his faculties, were so distorted as to be quite untrue; that he had never made charges against Mr. Sunday; and that he deplored the wrong impressions created by false constructions placed upon words uttered as a result of surrender to an unfortunate weakness.

"This manly confession closes an incident discreditable only to those whose enmity created it. Mr. Sunday, we imagine, is prepared for tactics of this kind. He knows that he cannot expect to be spared ordeals which all who effectually antagonize the liquor traffic must suffer in some degree. As his influence has widened and his attacks upon the liquor evil have grown in power, the reprisals have multiplied in frequency and increased in intensity.

"But it is doubtful if anything more base than this was ever attempted by the rum-selling interests. Naturally, they would have no scruples about seeking trenchantly to discredit a religious movement. The shocking thing is that they are depraved enough to use as an instrument a living example of their own handiwork."

BEN HURS

The date for hearing of the application for temporary injunction against the Building Trades Council, filed several days ago by the master plumbers of the city, is indeterminate.

When Judge Farbell, of Georgetown, missed his train connection last Monday, necessitating another delay in the hearing for temporary injunction, he suggested that the matter be heard either today or next Tuesday. Inquiry among the opposing counsel failed to get a definite answer from either side as to when the case would be heard, one attorney going so far as to venture the statement that he doubted whether the case would ever be heard. His manner indicated that a settlement of the trouble might be expected.

The Portsmouth Athletic Club will give their second dance Monday night. The success of the dance last Monday night has prompted the new club into arranging for more dances and entertainments that will be given as benefits for the organization. Saturday night, July 3, there will be an exhibition of wrestling, boxing, and tumbling. The wrestling bouts will be by the best amateur wrestlers in the city.

Bradford. The entertainment committee reported indications pointed to a large attendance at the Mrs. Norma Clark Young concert next Thursday evening. The committee also made its final report on the Decoration day celebration, showing it was a success.

Have Trouble In Making Court Entry

Attorneys in the divorce case of Ida Brane against John W. Brane, decided several days ago by Judge Stephenson, are experiencing difficulty in drawing up an entry that will prove agreeable to both sides.

In granting divorce and alimony to the wife, and joint custody of the child to both husband and wife, Judge Stephenson stated that each of them would have the right to visit the child at reasonable times while he was in the custody of the other. It is in the wording of the entry granting this right to each of them that the attorneys have disagreed.

Judge Stephenson, in common pleas court Friday, ordered Theodore K. Funk, one of Brane's attorneys, to prepare another entry to be submitted upon his return next week. Brane was awarded the custody of the boy during the summer vacation season, while Mrs. Brane, who now resides in this city, is to have him during the school year.

Summer Kitchen Is Damaged By Fire

Damage estimated at $125, fully covered by insurance, was wrought by a fire which broke out at midnight Thursday, in a frame building on the rear of the lot at 1120 Chillicothe street. The building, which was used as a summer kitchen by the B. E. Wieggers family, who occupy the residence on the lot, was totally destroyed. It was owned by John Heisel.

The alarm was turned in by some unknown man who saw the blaze as he was passing the scene in an automobile. The watchman at the Stockham plant also discovered the blaze about the same time. The East End and Seventh street companies responded to the alarm and soon had the fire under control, preventing its spread to neighboring buildings. Some misunderstanding arose at the Seventh street station, the hose reel cart and the ladder truck being driven to Second and Chillicothe streets by mistake. They continued on to the fire, however.

The origin of the fire is unknown. Chief McQuat visited the scene Saturday morning and conducted an investigation, but could find out nothing that would lead to the probable cause of the blaze.

Of 3,097 Population

The population of New Boston is 3,097, according to the report turned in at the regular monthly meeting of New Boston board of education, Friday evening. Squire Marion Poole took the census to see if the village had over 3000 souls, the number needed before the village schools could be taken from under the supervision of a county superintendent. All villages under 3,000 population come under the supervision of a county superintendent, to begin July 1st.

All members of the board were present with Supt. S. D. Eckhart and Principal D. E. Ross, who will probably be the next superintendent, succeeding Eckhart.

C. E. Nourse, contractor building the addition to Stanton avenue school, was allowed his fifth estimate amounting to $2500.

The monthly schedule of bills amounting to $178.34 was allowed. A motion was passed allowing the janitors, Miram Smith and David Smith, a week's vacation to begin July 1st.

Had Divorce Trial
The Second Time

The Cincinnati Enquirer Friday had the following concerning a former Portsmouth couple:

"On December 18, of last year, Judge Warner, then on the Insolvency bench, heard the divorce suit of Ethel Salyer, of 22 East Ninth street, against Ballard Salyer and granted her a decree on the ground of cruelty. The decree was not presented to Judge Warner, and so was not signed by him before he left the bench. A few weeks ago Mrs. Salyer, thinking that she was divorced, sought a certified copy of the decree. As none had been entered she asked Judge Kelley, who succeeded Judge Warner on the Insolvency bench, to sign the decree, but this the court could not do. However, Judge Kelley ordered the case retried before him, and this was done yesterday, the wife being granted a decree. The couple were married April 6, 1910, and separated three years ago. A. N. Cohn, attorney."

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring back color, gloss and thickness with Grandma's recipe of Sage and Sulphur.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, is trouble-free. The easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyle's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyle's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrant and you appear years younger.

Report of the proceedings of the state convocation of the O. A. R. was made at the regular weekly meeting of Bailey Post, O. A. R., Friday evening, by four delegates who attended: Capt. Crend Milstead, J. J. Davidson, Firman Smith and Harry Kahmar. Each one of the four made an interesting talk on his impression of the big meeting.

During the months of July, August and September, Bailey Post will meet but once a month, on the fourth Friday evening of each month.

YOUNG GIRL LEAVES HOME: THREATENS SUICIDE

Left Note Saying She Would Drown Self; Police Search

Keriona Riley, aged 15 years, a step daughter of Raymond Rose, a Haverhill farmer, disappeared from home Saturday morning at 3 o'clock after leaving a note in which she declared her intention of drowning herself as she was "tired of life."

As soon as the girl's absence was discovered a search was instituted for her. No trace of any foot prints were to be found along the river and members of the family were rather inclined to believe that the child did not carry out her threat.

She had previously expressed a desire, it was said, to work in some Young Women's Christian Association building. Someone suggested that she go to the Y. W. C. A. in Portsmouth but she disapproved of this, declaring that that would be too close to home. She is said to have complained to friends that she was tired of farm life and that she was being worked too hard.

Sheriff Pete Smith was appealed by relatives to assist in the search and he in turn requested the police to watch all trains.

The Lawrence county authorities are also aiding in the search for the girl who is described as small for her age, round full faced, large brown eyes, brown hair and wearing a very short pink summer silk dress. Her mother was Mary Hisey previous to her marriage to Mr. Rose twelve years ago. There are four other younger children in the family. Up to 3 p. m. not the slightest trace had been found of the missing girl.

MR. TRITSCHER HURT IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT; THROWN OUT ON HEAD

After riding several squares behind a runaway horse, P. Fred Tritschler, president of the Tritschler Plumbing Company, was thrown from a delivery wagon at the corner of Second and Waller streets about 11 o'clock this morning, sustaining injuries of a serious nature.

He was returning from the Gallia school building on the Gallia pike, where he had driven on a business errand. His horse became frightened while crossing the railroad tracks at Campbell avenue and Gallica streets, and started to run away. Mr. Tritschler held to the lines, and had the animal partly under control as it ran at full speed down Gallica street. He succeeded in turning the horse into Waller street, where it continued its mad flight, with the driver clinging with full strength to the lines.

Bicycle Races Are Up To Merchants Declares Promoter

Francis Knapp, promoter of the highly successful bicycle races held Decoration Day, has not received much encouragement to hold bicycle races on Monday, July 5th, when the Fourth will be celebrated. The bicycle men that helped and donated prizes for the other races have not responded the way Knapp expected them to and he said Saturday that he hasn't got the time to leave his work and get up the races. Knapp will make another effort early next week to interest merchants in giving prizes. It depends on how the merchants respond, whether or not there will be bicycle races July 5th.

GIVEN FREE RIDE, BOYS ROB THEIR BENEFACTOR BASE BALL

Three local youths, John Mer-shon, Paul Phillips and William Manuel, repaid the kindness of Sam Nichols, a tie hauler of Pond Run, in permitting them to ride to the West Side on his wagon Saturday morning by robbing him of his pocketbook, containing $6.25. The boys were later captured, $5 of the money being recovered, and the alleged thieves lodged in jail.

According to the story told Judge Beatty by Nichols, he was returning home with an empty wagon Saturday morning, and came across the three youths in the west end of the city. They asked to ride with him, and he accommodated them.

Nichols claims that he worked all night Friday night, and was so hard pressed for sleep that he fell asleep on his wagon while driving near the infirmary. When he awoke his pocketbook was gone and also the three boys.

Will Case Put Off Until Next Monday

Taking of testimony in the Hogan will contest case was concluded in common pleas court before the jury Saturday afternoon, and an adjournment until Monday morning was taken by Judge Stephenson, who is presiding. The arguments of attorneys will be made at the opening of court Monday morning, after which the case will go to the jury.

John W. Hogan, widower of the late Maria J. Hogan and his two sons, Edwin W. and William Hogan, are endeavoring to break the will, leaving everything to her daughter, Maria J. Ford, on the grounds of undue influence and mental incapacity. The attorneys are Miller, Miller and Seal for the plaintiffs and Miller and Micklethwait for the defendant.

Finish More Paving On The Gallia Pike; Opened On July 6

The paving of the north side of Gallia pike, from Poplar street, one square east of the Y. M. C. A., to Young street, was completed Saturday morning. The last brick was laid about nine o'clock and the ground filler was put on in the afternoon. The pike is closed to traffic for ten days after the ground filler is used. That part of the pike from the Y. M. C. A. east will be open day, but the pike from Norfolk street west will not be opened until July 6th.

This makes the paving of the pike complete from Young street, east to Poplar street. The curb has been laid from Poplar street to the east corporation line. The curb on the south side along this part of the pike will be put in after the concreting of the north side is complete. The new car tracks have been laid from Poplar street to the corporation line. The work of pouring the concrete base on the north side of the last stretch of the pike will be started Monday morning. The ridge on which the street car line now runs will not be leveled down until after the north side of the pike, from Poplar street east is completed.

RUSSIANS PREPARE TO DEFEND WARSAW

London, June 26—A central News dispatch from Rotterdam says heavy trainloads, loaded with guns, have left Essens for the German front on the Bzara river in Poland, where it is believed they will be used in advance against Warsaw.

Since the fall of Lemberg, military experts in London have expressed the belief that the Austro-German allies would not be content with forcing the Russians beyond the borders of Galicia, but would attempt to continue their terrible drive and capture Warsaw, the capital of Poland. On previous occasions the Germans have hammered their way to a point almost within artillery range of Warsaw, but have been driven back by the forces under the direction of Grand Duke Nicholas.

The success of the Teutonic allies in the Galician campaign was due largely to a preponderance of artillery and the expenditure of an overwhelming number of shells. If additional heavy guns have been sent from Essen, where the famous Krupp works are located, it would seem to indicate an intention to continue in Poland operations of a similar nature.

Dependability versus Ingenious Claims

MORE than 75 concerns now manufacture Tires. We believe that every one of these makes as good Tires as he knows how, at the lowest cost his experience, equipment and methods make possible.

We believe that the average Tire Manufacturer is fair in his treatment of Adjustments, and that few deliberately misrepresent their product, either verbally or in print.

We believe that no Tire Manufacturer can afford to make statements in print about his product, which statements cannot be borne out by the performance of his Tires, in actual use.

We believe that the Tire Manufacturer who makes such statements, and who runs "cut" for any considerable distance, and that many makers, including ourselves, have always produced Tires that would not otherwise "Run-Cut."

POLICE FEAR RIOT AT ATLANTA INAUGURATION

Atlanta, Ga., June 26.—Near beer saloons were closed, the entire night watch of police was held at stations for extra duty and the guard of militia still surrounded Governor Slaton's home in an effort of the authorities to forestall night demonstrations. The term of Governor Slaton expired at noon and crowds were in the city for the inauguration of Nat E. Harris. The business section of the city was patrolled by a double watch of police today and 40 extra mounted men were sent to the capital. Otherwise to all outward appearances the city was normal. Mr. Harris has stated that the guard at Mr. Slaton's home will be doubled tonight and the guardmen will be kept there until, in the opinion of Judge Alexander Nash, all danger has passed.

THOUSANDS CROWD CHICAGO SPEEDWAY TO WITNESS 500 MILE AUTOMOBILE DERBY

TWENTY-ONE SPEED KINGS START RACE ON WORLD'S GREATEST AUTO COURSE

Speedway, Chicago, June 26.—The start was delayed half an hour to give Bob Burnham time to replace a broken piston rod. At 9:30 the parkway space around the big oval was filled with automobile parties and the grand stand was filling slowly. A mist which hinted at rain apparently discouraged the crowds from coming early.

Speedway, Chicago, June 26.—Thousands of persons at an early hour today were on their way to the new two-mile automobile speedway advertised as the fastest in the world, to witness the 500 mile Derby participated in by 21 of the best known drivers in the country.

Twenty years ago a so-called "horses carriage" driven by Charles Duryea, of Springfield, Mass., plowed through snow and slush on the roads between Chicago and Evanston and won the first automobile race ever held in this country. His time for the 40-mile route laid out was at the rate of 7.5 miles an hour. Today, a generation later, the finest creations of the engineers of three countries met at ten o'clock to battle for $54,000 in prize money, and they expect to go twelve times as fast as Duryea did as a pioneer.

The drivers have two 500 mile circuits to shoot at. First comes the Brooklands, England mark of 94.75 miles an hour made in 1913, by Resta, Chassagne and Guinness, who relieved each other at intervals of a 12-hour grind and the Indianapolis record of 89.34 miles an hour, established by Ralph De Palma, who won the Hoosier classic this year.

Predictions were made that the De Palma record would be overwhelmed, based on practice records over the board track. Enthusiasts declared that the winner would have to average 97 miles, but the more conservative questioned whether the Brooklands record would be beaten.

The following are the makes of the cars and the drivers:

U. S. OFFICERS BATTLE SERBIAN RESERVISTS, ARREST TWENTY THREE

Chicago, June 26.—Twenty-three reservists of the Serbian army, alleged to be United States citizens, either born or naturalized, were held by federal officers here today for appearance before United States commission for examination as to violation of the nation's neutrality.

The reservists were taken into custody by fifteen United States deputy marshals as they were leaving with about 400 of their countrymen, for London, Ontario, last night. They were to sail from Canada, it was reported to join their regiments fighting with the allies. Other members of the party, which occupied seven coaches, were permitted to leave after the train had been delayed four hours.

Twenty-three men were delayed only after a riot which brought police to the assistance of the federal deputies. When the federal authorities boarded the train the reservists began shrieking in the native tongue that German spies had attacked them.

They scrambled out of the coaches and fought off attempts of the federal officers to arrest them. Police were obliged to swing their clubs on the heads of the Serbians before order was restored.

THROWN OUT OF WORK BY GENERAL SHUTDOWN OF BUILDING INDUSTRY

Chicago, June 26.—A general shut down of Chicago's building industry, which, it was said, will throw out of employment more than 200,000 workers, went into effect today. The "shut-down" is regarded by men in the industry as the worst business contraction since the war began. It is the beginning of one of the greatest labor wars in recent years. The employers, it was said, hope to prevent a strike since April 30, when their agreement with the contractors' association expired. The men had demanded a wage increase of 10 cents an hour, and the employers refused to grant it. By means of the shut-down, the labor was taken at a meeting last night of the representatives of the contractors' association, and thus from the material interests of the workers, the employers hoped to prevent a strike. The referendum vote of 35,000 out of 10,000 carpenters who are working on the city's public buildings, and the employers' individual agreements.

It was expected the testimony of all those subpoenaed by the state would be completed by noon today. It is understood members of the investigating committee will file their report together with whatever recommendations they make with Governor Willis. Captain Hastings was the principal witness today. He gave his version of the incident relating to the removal of certain timber and its conversion into fire wood. He also went into details as to the reasons for discharging several employees including Joseph Geer, today. It is understood members of the investigating committee charges against Hastings.

Jap Officers Kill Selves As Lemberg Falls To Austrians

Tokio, June 26.—Major Naka and Captain Sashimura, Japanese officers with the Russian army at Lemberg, committed hari-kari when the Galician capital fell, rather than suffer what they considered the dishonor of being made prisoners of war, according to official advices received from Petrograd. Hari-kari is a Japanese method of committing suicide, formerly widely practiced by military officers. In the days of the old Samurai system officers usually killed themselves when it became necessary to surrender their troops under them.

ALL EUROPE AWAITS GERMANY'S NEXT MOVE

London, June 26.—With a breathless expectancy which seems to be reflected in the pulse at the present moment on both battle fronts on the continent, the British public is awaiting the next move on the European chess-board.

It is conceded that this move is Germany's and it may be made against either Warsaw, Paris or Calais. Some German activity has been reported in the Argonne, which has been reported in the direction of Paris, but the closing of the Belgian frontier may mean the transfer of veterans from the east to the front for another attempt to break through to the English channel.

Many persons believe, however, that no great offensive movement will be attempted along the western front until another effort has been made to reach Warsaw, against which position the Germans are said to be bringing big guns from Essen.

No great activity is to be noted along any of the minor fronts. The Italians claim to be engaged in co-ordinating the positions they have won along the river Isonzo, while the French are reported to be suffering from the enormous losses suffered by the Turks in defending the peninsula.

LONDON EDITOR DIES

London, June 26.—Alexander Kennedy, 51, editor of the London Daily Mirror, died today. Mr. Kennedy was born in Sussex, England, devoted all his life to journalism. He joined the staff of the New York Herald in 1882 and represented that paper on Rear Admiral Peary's first Arctic expedition. He became a member of the New York World staff in 1895 and was its correspondent with the American fleet in the Spanish war. Mr. Kennedy began newspaper work in London as news editor of the Daily Express in 1901. Three years later he went with the Daily Mirror. Under the nono plume of Montague Vernon Ponsbury he wrote the "Preposterous Yankee," and he also was the author of "The Letters of Alphonse Mouton."

GREEK KING RECOVERING

London, June 26.—The Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company says that King Constantine of Greece, who has been seriously ill for some time, has improved so greatly in health that he has been informed of the victory of Eleftherios, Venizelos, the former premier, in the recent national elections. The king has expressed a keen desire to leave his sick bed before parliament convenes, and his physicians are said to be hopeful that he may do so.

FRANKFORT DEFEATED 7-3; NEW CATCHER STARS

Third Straight Is Taken From Visitors; Teams Play Today

PORTSMOUTH sustained its enviable reputation for digging up good ball players yesterday as Johnson, the new catcher, made a splendid impression, in fact everybody was pleased with his first day's work except the Frankfort players, who met the third straight defeat, the score being 7 to 3.

In addition to catching a bang up game Johnson whaled a triple, to center, a double to right and then chose a spot in left field for his single. The fans applauded him all the way and Johnson certainly had one big day of it. He developed the hitting habit right off the reel and to date is hitting at a 1,000 clip.

There was nothing to the game but Portsmouth although in the early stages it was nip and tuck with Frankfort doing most of the tucking. There were a number of smart plays executed with skill and precision and the fine crowd enjoyed every angle of the game. Portsmouth staged one of its famous rallies in the seventh and when the curtain dropped four runs had been scored on four hits and Frankfort was out of the running. The Old Taylors just backed up and pushed the balance of the way.

It looked like the Kentuckians might have one of their good days as they scored a run in the opening inning, but Larry Jacobus, served as a stumbling block and the run total of the visitors amounted to five hits. Both pitchers worked well until the seventh when Craig, the lead with the substitute, hit down precipitously and was touched up for one ringing smash and then the stuff was off. Frankfort rallied in the sixth when they secured three of their five hits; but Jacobus was master of the situation at all times. The big Cincinnati gave two passes and hit a batsman, but his old curve ball was working all the time and he was never in any great danger.

For a starter Jimmie drew a pass and went to second when he was caught between the sacks and Spencer made a mad dash to Caton. Spade hunted and Jacobus tried to get Kimble at third, but all hands were near; Angermeyer then topped to Caton and Kimble lost his throw home. Dawson sacrificed, Spade going to third and Angermeyer to second. Then it was that Outfielder Dille pivoted a beautiful double play. Hauling in Jimmie's fly he returned the pill to Johnson in time to put Spade away. He attempted to score after the catch.

Caton was thrown out by Hoffman in the second but Bush cracked a double to right. He took third when McHenry fled to Spade and scored a moment later when Johnson knipped a double to right. The lead was being applauded as he stepped to the plate and without waiting he topped onto the first ball and drove it past Angermeyer for a half way stop. Jacobus was thrown out by Williams.

Caton in the fourth reached first on Johnson's error. Bush sacrificed and McHenry was thrown out by Johnson, but Johnson the local catcher lined one

Cobb Drops Below .400 Mark

Chicago, June 23.—Ty Cobb has allowed his batting average to slip below .400 for the first time since he gained the leadership of the American league this season, according to averages compiled here today including the records of last Wednesday. Cobb maintains his place in the front but the batting slump Jake Daubert suffered in the recent series lost the Brooklyn start first place in the National.

News Pleased Local Fans

That was good news that was wafted out of Chillicothe last night. The Ohio State without the dear old Babes would be like an Uncle Tom's Cabin without dear little Eva.

Luderus Is Best Hitter In National

Here is how the boss hitter of the National league and hitting. St. Louis has displaced New York in team batting with .330 to the Giants' .327. Salter of Chicago leads in total bases with 123 and in runs scored with 32. Carey of Pittsburgh leads the bases leaders with 23 and Cravath, Philadelphia, in home runs with nine.

Southworth Hit .336

When Southworth said goodbye to his A. A. surroundings he was hitting at a .335 clip according to the latest averages published by the American Association. Here are the averages:

Lexington fans are planning a great benefit drive for Mills and Shaffer. A committee has started out to sell 1,000 tickets and the trick will be turned. The entire proceeds will go to the disabled players.

CUBS GOING ALONG AT TOPSPEED

The Chicago Cubs have secured a good lead in this National league all because they have been able to beat the St. Louis team three games in a row. It really begins to look like the team that uses out the Bresnahan crowd will win the National league pennant this year. The team is well balanced and has the hitting power.

HOME IN TERRE HAUTE

Roy Johnson, the new catcher's home is in Terre Haute, Ind. He has been playing semi-pro ball with the famous Washington Grays of Washington, Ind. He was with the Owensboro, Ky., team in the Klay league for a short while last year. He looks every inch a ball player and should develop into one of the team's most valuable men.

EIGHT OUT OF ELEVEN

On the present home stay Portsmouth has so far topped 8 games out of 11 with one more to play with Frankfort. Two out of three were taken from the Charleston Senators. Lexington was defeated three games out of five and Frankfort has been scalloped three times in the same place. Small wonder that the team is gleefully perched on the top rung of the championship ladder and is smiling down at the other teams with disdainful contempt.

SOME NAME, THIS

Up in Wmington there is a player who calls under the name of Ogleman. We don't know whether he does or not, but the chap has a name that is surely well suited for baseball. It is said the fellow is a cross between an Indian and an umbrella tender.

MADE SWELL PLAY

Caton and Bush pulled one of the best plays ever witnessed in the break in Friday's game when Caton rushed over to second, scooped up the ball with one hand and converted it into a force out by tossing the ball to Bush. The play had to be made very rapidly and was executed perfectly by Bush and Caton.

NEW CATCHER STARRED

Catcher Johnson jumped into instant favor Friday. He is already in good with local fans. Just ponder over what he accomplished yesterday. He secured a single, double and a triple out of four hits to the plate and was hit by a pitched ball. He drove in two runs and scored one himself. Johnson all way round.

Back With Babes

Howard McGraynor, who formerly played with the Chillicothe club has returned to the Babe camp. He joined Jack Devore's team Friday and is ready for duty. McGraynor for the past two seasons had been with the Montreal team in the International league. McGraynor was sold by Chillicothe for a fancy price.

MANY GOING TO CHILLY

There will be a number of auto parties to Chillicothe Sunday. Portsmouth fans always like to go to Chillicothe, O., and was in solidarity with the cars carrying kids that take themselves seriously. When Portsmouth and Chillicothe meet the spectators always see a regular ball game.

THANKS, BAN OLD BOY

President Ben Johnson of the American league says he has no intention of running Ty Cobb out of the league. Just about as much chance as Jaw D. has of becoming a pastor. Johnson has been after Cobb for writing articles about the American league teams.

Was After Umpire

First baseman Hub Dawson indulged in his favorite stunt yesterday, umpire basting. He kept after Colgate all the way. His umpire should have chased Dawson in the seventh when the tall first baseman pulled some queer stuff. Colgate warned him but warnings bounce right off Dawson's back.

K. OF P'S. TO CELEBRATE

A K. of P. celebration will be held at Garvin's grove, one mile east of Owens, on Saturday, July 3rd, 1916. Good speakers have been selected for the day and also good music. AS OTHERS SEE US.

Portsmouth citizens become so accustomed to hearing about dirty alleys, dilapidated buildings and alley houses that should be torn down, and similar matters that come up when a growing small city is getting out of the swaddling clothes class and into the real city crowd that they are liable to lose sight of the many good things of which this "Peerless Portsmouth" can boast. This fact was very forcibly impressed upon us by an experience recently when we had the opportunity of securing an unbiased opinion of the city.

We had the pleasure of meeting Judge Geiger, of Springfield, and his charming wife, when they were at Maple Grove, enroute to Portsmouth on an automobile tour. It was evident they regarded Portsmouth as a rambling "river city," dirty, unimproving, without enterprise, and harboring some pretty dangerous inhabitants. This impression had been gained largely by Judge Geiger who a score of years ago had visited in the city and still retained hazy recollections of the place.

As we had been claiming that Portsmouth was the best little city in the country, bar none, when Judge Geiger changed to air his views during a general discussion, we naturally came in for a considerable amount of joshing.

We dared to point out some of the many good things about the city, in advance, but trusted in general to the visitors' own initiative in securing information about Portsmouth.

Naturally it was with considerable interest we awaited the verdict, after they had spent an afternoon and night in the city and had reached Maple Grove on their way back home. It would have done any loyal citizen a lot of good to have heard Judge Geiger's comments.

"Say, I liked your town of Portsmouth, very much," he said. "I was never so surprised in my life. You have a real little city down there. I liked your business houses. When I walked up that street from the Washington hotel and saw those splendid wholesale plants, big furniture stores, etc., I began to wonder what kind of a city it was.

"The favorable impression grew as I turned out the street to the north and saw your fine retail stores.

"Then when my wife and I walked out what I learned was Italia avenue, and saw those handsome residences, your fine school building, impressive looking churches, etc., I turned to my wife, and said, 'I was never so surprised in my life.'

"We commented also on the great amount of paving we saw. I don't believe I saw a street that was not paved. Another thing I noticed was that your streets were free from obstructions, in which you are ahead of my own town, and of course I think Springfield is as good as the best."

After considerable discussion along the material side of the city life, Judge Geiger brought up the scenery, and was enthusiastic concerning the views down the Scioto valley and the beauty of the Kentucky hills, etc.

Altogether Judge Geiger was most favorably impressed with Portsmouth, and as his remarks were made publicly to the group of citizens from various parts of the state who had been "joshing" us, we could not be blamed for swelling up like the famous pouter pigeon.

All of which leads to the reflection that it might be a good thing for all our citizens to look about for the many fine things in Portsmouth, and to lose no opportunity to herald them abroad.

ONE OF THE STRAWS.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company authorized on April 6th, the issuance of $5,000,000 in preferred stock. By the terms of issuance stockholders of the company had preference in taking the preferred, provided they exercised that preference before the first of July. With a week to go on yet stockholders have taken up over half of the amount and this will be largely increased before the period of preference expires. More than that, certificates of rights-to-purchase, issued to stockholders, have gone to a fancy premium, sometimes ranging up to forty per cent.

There is your condition knocking theory into a cocked hat. Fellows have been ranting and roaring around that Democratic free trade had ruined the iron industry, and here are people like the sort of ruin wrought so well that they are, instead, trying to get their millions out of the industry actually rivaling with each other in haste to put more millions in. For, mind you, the Youngstown industry is neither bantling, nor piker in the iron world. It is capitalized 'way up in the millions and has one of the largest plants of its particular kind in the world, employing thousands of men. Backing the activity in its financial affairs must lie not only future confidence in its future prosperity, but the known solidity of the immediate present.

OPEN THE GATES.

The Columbus press is making an insistent demand that the price of admission to the state fair be reduced by just, one-half, from fifty to twenty-five cents, and that is rare modest for Columbus and by a rare coincidence by just one-half—it is surprising it does not demand the gates be thrown wide open and free.

And why not? The fair is an institution out of which the capital city gets all the direct profit. Much ado is made about the educational value thereof to the agricultural interests. And, no doubt, a considerable number get knowledge and inspiration from the exhibits. If more persons from the farm could be induced to attend by reducing or eliminating the admission price, it would be a reason to make it at least as good as that of making a cheaper holiday for Columbus and her suburbs.

Athens has an industry she is proud of, because of her alleged pre-eminence therewith. It is the boarding house. With it, during this month, she absorbed without an effort, two thousand school marms and a few hundred maids. Whether the pedagogues assimilated with equal ease what the boarding house offered them is another matter.

"I will give the subject of suffrage careful and conscientious consideration." So said Senator Warren G. Harding, when confronted by a flying squad of suffragettes. Which the same is alliterative and ambiguous and slides the shy Senator out as amiably as answer would allow.

After awhile it will get so every politician can have a secret society of his own and be the sole "it" therein.

Just whigger it. No gain for five whole days.

WE'LL SHOW HIM, B'GOSH.

A STRIKING CONTRAST.

President Wilson has chosen Robert Lansing to succeed William J. Bryan as secretary of state.

It would be hard to present a greater contrast in the rise to official honors than is offered in the careers of these two men. If Bryan has shot over night the limelight he has always basked in it. He attained to the distinction of secretary of state because of his notable party service and his competency in the agitation of public issues, which is in no sense reflecting upon his capacity for the position. He had, probably, more personal and powerful friends than any other Democrat in the country and so, as they say in politics, a strong pull. On the other hand Secretary Lansing's service to the party has been nil in so far as it has brought him any prominence, or as it is generally known: 'Though a Democrat, he entered the department of state during a Republican administration. Quickly he made himself quite indispensable therein, acquiring an unusual knowledge in national law and developing striking skill as a diplomat. His rise was a promotion on merit alone, since he had no influential political alliances, few, indeed, knowing certainly what party he held allegiance to.

His case is but an illustration of how true it is that America is the land of opportunity. No matter where a man is located, or in what pursuit engaged he will find the door leading upwards always open.

CERTAINLY MOST UNCERTAIN.

To use an overworked illustration, eighteen thousand people and more packed themselves in Madison Square Garden, New York, Thursday, like sardines in a box, only they stood up instead of lying down, as sardines do, to hear frantically William J. Bryan on his discourse on "Peace." As many more squirmed, twisted, slaved and cramped in a vain effort to get in.

It was as great an ovation as "the peerless leader of the plain people" ever received and the spectacular part of it was that those then cheering him loudest were the ones that for years have "cussed" him the hardest. There is just this about it, if you will: There isn't anything as uncertain as a dead certainty, and there is always room for the horrible suspicion that the other fellow may be right and you wrong.

Just as guaranteed that the investigation of the Lancaster reform school will be fair and non-partisan, our good Governor appoints the chairman of a Republican committee to conduct it and Ed Pullington, his political adviser, to get up the evidence and handle the charges.

The sweet and otherwise graduates having had their say, the newspapers are now handing back some wholesome advice to them. We reckon newspapers and graduates talk nobler and perform more ignobly than any other team.

Tourist: It is doubtless untrue that California got up that earthquake Tuesday to advertise its exposition. The shake was 'way down at its toe, while the show is located about its stomach, if we may so express it.

The whole world is pretty much alike. Up in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, public officials are also issuing proclamations that the speed ordinances must be obeyed. And the speeder keeps on speeding.

The Marion Star believes in President Wilson's foreign policy and stands straight along side of him, even if its editor is a Republican United States senator. Candor and courage are admirable, especially so in politics.

Three Americans, charged with counterfeiting Mexican money, have been released from Chilichuho jail, it is supposed on the ground there can be no crime in imitating that which is valueless.

Bryan is going to make a tour of the country in advocacy of peace. In other words having written it serially he is now going to talk it on the installment plan.

Not much stock is taken in the proposition that Bill Bryan and Gussie Gardner hire a hall and talk it out.

They do not know what golf may be. Who call it, childlike play. To drive a globe from a tee. And follow it away. They do not understand who scoff. And all its virtues miss. Who think that this is all of golf. For golf is more than that.

For golf is earth's ambassador. That comes to haunts of men. To lure them from the banking floor. The counter and the pen. To lead them gently by the hand. From toil and stress and strife. And guide them through the summer land. Along the path of life.

The pastime of philosophers. For such a man must be. When far away the golf ball whirles. And hides behind a tree. A man may see his business fall. And never turn a hair. But men are strong who lose the ball. And still refuse to swear.

It is a game of honor, too. That tries the soul of men. It's easy in the public view. To all be honest men. But he deserves an angel's wings. Who pants of truth have trod. When left alone with but two things. His score card and his God.

If golf shall teach you patiently. Adversity to meet. If it shall teach philosophy. To keep your temper sweet. If it shall teach you still to grin. With mirth no matter what. You are a victor if you win. A loving cup or not. —From Golfers' Magazine, June, 1915.

The Horrors of War. "I see the soldiers in Africa are wearing yells and those in Europe are using wrist watches," remarked the woman-who-reads-the-papers. "No wonder they talk about the horrors of war," growled the husband. "Aren't the Germans facing the Russians up the bank?"

The Gossip of Wall Flowers. Overheard at a dance, according to Life: "Don't you love to watch them? I never get tired of it. They say it's such good exercise—yes, it really is. But so few men lead well—aren't they splendid? Her father gives her ten thousand a year just to dress on. No, they never used to cut in; I rather like the idea, don't you? Osborn's Announcement

Republican Electors of Portsmouth,

I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor of our city, and as I shall not be able to meet you all personally I take this means of announcing my platform which is PORTSMOUTH FIRST, LAST AND ALL THE TIME, standing upon my record of nine and one-half years' service in your city council, of which record I invite the most critical inspection. If you honestly believe that by reason of my experience and the interest heretofore taken by me in municipal affairs I am better equipped than any other aspirant for that nomination to administer the office in the interests of all our people, then it is your duty to support me, and I respectfully solicit your votes at the coming primary election. If nominated and elected I shall take up the office with no other obligation than to secure the best assistance possible and give our people the best that is in me for good municipal government. Looking to the greatest good to the greatest number.

Geo. M. Osborn.

Governor Hufschmidt is claimed to be a strong contender for Senator. That's probably, because his constituency is eager to get him away from the state as much as possible.

Nothing is so bad that it can not be worse. Having inflicted the germ theory upon us New England now wants to give us a post graduate course with the germ plasm.

Again we are puzzled. The Austrians claim to be running the Russians clear out of bread, and yet Petrograd continues to lo with its customary amount.

It isn't how the child is born, it is how it is "raised" that makes it. Heridity is mere bosh.

New York, June 26.—Since Steve Brodie took his famous chances—and got away with it all kinds of bridge and newspaper jumpers have essayed his feat off the justly famed Brooklyn span. Magistrate Harris has just decided that it is no crime to jump off Brooklyn bridge unless the intent is suicide.

The ambition to become a film star lures most of the bridge jumpers. One mechanic gave up his job and came here the other Sunday and leaped off the bridge to death. There was something pathetic in a more recent case. A twenty-one year old youth yearned to be a hero and make his mother proud of him. He leaped, hit the water and came up safely. But the police grabbed him.

The court discharged him, but the movies will have none of him. Hard luck—but his failure deserved wide publicity. The desire to do something out of the ordinary is worth cultivating, but not to the point of desperation.

Broadway's most recent wheeze, bruited about by the sidewalk comedians, deals with the wonderful advance in surgery and the most recent famous operation. Jess Conway, of the Herald, pulled it. Here goes: "The most famous surgical operation was the Lunning of the Wilson cabinet." Conway got away without being malmed.

The Ford car wheezes were supposed to be of a more or less recent vintage, but they have become extremely tiresome. Franklin P. Adams, however, has made the discovery that Sir John Falstaff was the first to grow weary of the automobile jumpy.

What said he in Act II, Scene 5. "I have had Ford enough; I have thrown into the Ford; I have my belly full of Ford."

Pursuing his investigations further, Adams discovers that in "The Merry Wives of Windsor"

NEAR MUTINY AT CITY HOSPITAL; TROUBLE OVER, SAYS SERVICE DIRECTOR

A mutiny that broke out among the nurses of Hampshire hospital Thursday morning came near resulting in wholesale dismissals but just as suddenly as it started when the girls themselves pleaded to be retained and openly expressed regret for their hasty action, according to Safety Director Lake.

As a direct result of the sudden outbreak, Mrs. Elizabeth Greer, of Kansas City, who has been serving in the capacity of maid at the hospital since January 1, 1915, has resigned. Miss Olive Potts, of Chillicothe, who has been appointed to succeed her.

The whole affair is said to have centered around Mrs. Greer due to a breach between her and some of the nurses and because Miss Helen Lowe, superintendent of the institution, had upheld and defended the former. The clash reached its climax when all nurses excepting those on duty filed themselves to Mayor Adam Prick's home on Eighth street Thursday evening. Miss Lora Davis acted as spokeswoman for the delegation. She had not progressed far in complaining of alleged conditions at the hospital and in demanding the dismissal of both Miss Lowe and Mrs. Greer when the mayor interrupted her. He advised that since the nurses guided admission to the hospital through Dr. Joseph J. Kelly, the director of public safety, and Miss Helen Lowe, the superintendent, they must complain and leave the institution through the same channels; that no one endeavored to hold them in bondage and that if by remaining they thought they were doing themselves injustice, they owed it to themselves to divorce their connection with the hospital.

The mayor also told them, he says, that if he himself were in personal control he would summarily discharge all of them. As such as the girls left, the mayor called up Dr. J. Kelly and told him of the interview. That official hastened to the hospital. The nurses had not yet returned. He waited and when they arrived he promptly discharged them. They refused to be discharged, according to Dr. Lake, instead pleading to be allowed to remain, some with tears in their eyes begging for their positions. The director related and that ended the trouble save that on Friday Mrs. Greer declared the girls had mistreated her and that she no longer cared to remain. She accordingly gave up her position.

The director denied that any nurse had since been dismissed and declared Saturday that as far as he was concerned there would be no dismissal, that all was settled. He said he would ignore the statements directed against him by the Morning Star.

Have Trouble In Making Court Entry

Attorneys in the divorce case of John W. Braune against John W. Braune, Jr., decided several days ago by Judge Stephenson, are experiencing difficulty in drawing up an entry that will prove agreeable to both sides.

In granting divorce and alimony to the wife, and joint custody of the child to both husband and wife, Judge Stephenson stated that each of them would have the right to visit the child at reasonable times while he was in the custody of the other. It is in the wording of the entry granting this right to each of them that the attorneys have disagreed.

Judge Stephenson, in common pleas court Friday, ordered Theodore K. Funk, one of Braune's attorneys, to prepare another entry to be submitted upon his return next week. Braune was awarded the custody of the boy during the summer vacation season, while Mrs. Braune, who now resides in this city, is to have him during the school year.

Dressing Room At Sun Looted; Father And Son Arrested

William Bowman and son Floyd, of Fourteenth and Union streets, were arrested by Officers Roy Moore and Callahan Smith, Friday evening, for alleged looting a dressing room at the Sun theatre.

A secret of the Bowman apartments, in the so-called "Martin Box" tenement house produced a coat that was identified as the property of Julius Bauman, an attaché of the theatre, a pair of lawn tennis shoes, a military belt, some harps and other articles. Young Bowman, who is nineteen years old, was seen approaching the home just as the officers were starting with the father. He turned and ran to the railroad tracks on Fifth street with Moore in hot pursuit. Bowman fled through a lumber yard and into a box car but Smith met him on the other side, smiling him as he leaped to the ground. He had a full quart of whiskey in his hand. Father and son were locked up at the city prison.

The Bowman boy was one of a gang of young men convicted last winter of the wholesale stealing of robes from automobiles over town. A brother of Bowman was also arrested last spring along with a couple of other boys for stealing bicycles and abandoning them at Chillicothe after first cutting the tires.

Had Divorce Trial The Second Time Delegates Report

The Cincinnati Enquirer, Friday had the following concerning a former Portsmouth couple:

"On December 18, of last year, Judge Warner, then on the insolvency bench, heard the divorce suit of Ethel Salzer, of 22 East Ninth street, against Ballard Salzer and granted her a decree on the ground of cruelty. The divorce was not presented to Judge Warner and so was not signed by him before he left the bench. A few weeks ago Mrs. Salzer thought that she was divorced, bought a certified copy of the decree. As none had been entered she asked Judge Kelley, who succeeded Judge Warner on the insolvency bench, to sign the decree, but this the court could not do. However, Judge Kelley ordered the case retried before him, and this was done yesterday, the wife, being granted a decree. The couple were married April 6, 1910, and separated three years ago. A. N. Cohn, attorney.

ACKLEY BACKTRACKS ON SUNDAY CHARGES

Another chapter in the famous Ackley "Expose" of Billy Sunday has appeared in the Philadelphia North American; Ackley, in a signed article practically admitting he was intoxicated when he gave out his recent sensational articles. The North American in an editorial also gave alleged details of the affair.

Ackley's letter and the editorial follow:

Ackley Tells About Affair

Philadelphia June 19, 1915. To My Friends and the Public: Many of the things that recently have appeared in the public press with reference to my relations with and separation from Mr. Sunday and his party have been so distorted in matter of fact and manner of statement as to make them quite untrue, which are calculated to make an entirely false impression on the public mind.

I have labored with Mr. Sunday for eight years, and he has always been to me a good and most valued friend. I would be both false and disloyal to him and the work he has been doing were I to consciously say or do anything either in disparagement of him or his work, and I never can forget how much I owe to him for his many kindnesses.

I have never had any disagreement with Mr. Sunday, or dissatisfaction with him, growing out of money matters; never offered him suggested any agreement with reference to my musical publications. I have never charged him with plagiarism, or criticized his method or manner of preaching. Have never betrayed by word or deed anything within our confidential relations growing out of my secretarial services.

However, in unguarded and almost unconscious moments owing to an unfortunate weakness and under very peculiar circumstances I may have said things which have been distorted with statements for which I disclaim responsibility.

I believe most heartily in Mr. Sunday's sincerity and in the genuineness of his work and would be the last man in the world to knowingly put a straw in the way of his continuing success in the great work in which he is engaged.

"I am sorry if I have grieved Mr. Sunday or caused anxiety to those interested in his work and under the present circumstances I do not expect to be taken back into future work with him."

"I make this statement voluntarily without conference with Mr. Sunday or any committee but simply to do justice to all concerned and from a sense of duty to myself."

"B. D. ACKLEY."

Editorial In North American

"There may be a limit beyond which the liquor interests would not go in endeavoring to destroy an individual or a group of persons who have dealt effectively blows against their pernicious special privilege; but there is evidence that it has not yet been reached."

"Certainly the most recent attempt of the kind, the conspiracy to discredit the work done here by Billy Sunday, sets a new mark for malignity and repulsiveness."

"The public was startled some days ago by the publication of interviews purporting to have been given by one of the prominent members of the Sunday organization. While nothing in his alleged statements reflected in any degree upon the integrity or sincerity of the evangelist, assertions concerning other members of the party were calculated to disparage the whole campaign by supporting the liquor interests' charge that it was essentially a commercial venture, designed to capitalize religious sentiment."

"These attacks gained publicity in a manner which gave evidence of systematic direction, and this fact was fully confirmed by exposure of the liquor influence behind the campaign of defamation."

"It became known that a Camden rum seller had ingratiated himself with a member of the Sunday organization who had been private secretary to the evangelist, and had confidential knowledge of the arrangements. This man was selected as a likely subject of manipulation, because of habits which he had over come, but which still tested his powers of resistance."

"Both in Philadelphia and in Paterson, the saloonkeeper and agent of the liquor interests continuously cultivated the acquaintance of the Sunday aide. In what manner and to what extent he played upon the man's unfortunate weakness is not known; but the latter says that it was in unguarded and almost unconscious moments that he was led to make assertions which were 'distorted' into the interviews given to the press by a Camden newspaperman."

"So ambitious was the scheme of exploiting the indiscretions of a man whose sense of responsibility was paralyzed that a sensational article was in preparation for a magazine. The saloonkeeper even took his misguided charge to a newspaper office and prompted him to tell his story; but his zeal was fatal, for the man's condition was sufficient refutation of the eager rumrunner's tale."

"Finally the victim perceived dimly the use that was being made of him. He confided in a trusted friend and begged to know what had been going on. When he was told, his sense of decency and manhood asserted itself, and he insisted upon taking any course, however humiliating, to undo the harm he had unconsciously inflicted."

"In a public statement, therefore, he declared that, alleged interviews with him, based upon remarks he might have made when not in full command of his faculties, were so distorted as to be quite untrue; that he had never made charges against Mr. Sunday; and that he deplored the wrong impressions created by the 'sensational' placed upon words uttered as a result of surrender to an unfortunate weakness."

"This manly confession closes an incident creditable only to those whose omity created it. Mr. Sunday, we imagine, is prepared for tactics of this kind. He knows that he cannot expect to be spared oracles which all who effectively antagonize the liquor traffic must suffer in some degree. As his influence has widened and his attacks upon the liquor evil have grown in power, the reprisals have multiplied in frequency and increased in intensity."

"But it is doubtful if anything more basic than this was ever attempted by the rumrunner interests. Naturally, they would have no scruples about seeking treacherously to discredit a religious movement. The shooting thing is that they are depraved enough to use as an instrument a living example of their own handiwork."

CHARLES McCORMICK.

"At the municipal primaries on August 10, the Republicans of this city will have the opportunity of voting for one of Portsmouth's best known business men, Charles McCormick, who is an active candidate for the nomination of mayor. Mr. McCormick is perhaps one of the best young men of Portsmouth's young citizens. He is competent, obliging and endowed with those qualifications so much needed by a city's chief executive. He is making a most active campaign, and his many friends and well-wishers believe he will not only land the nomination, but will be triumphantly elected."

TRIAL DATE UNCERTAIN

The date for hearing of the application for temporary injunction against the Building Trades Council, filed several days ago by the master plumbers of the city, is indefinite.

When Judge Tarbell, of Georgetown, missed his train connection last Monday, necessitating another delay in the hearing for temporary injunction, he suggested that the matter be heard either today or next Tuesday. Inquiry among the opposing counsel failed to get a definite answer from either side as to when the case would be heard, an attorney going so far as to doubt the statement that he doubted whether the case would ever be heard. His manner indicated that a settlement of the trouble might be expected.

Haverhill Man Is Killed By Train Near Circleville

Injuries sustained by Ollie M. Pugh when he was caught on a bridge just this side of Circleville and run down by an N. & W. train Friday evening resulted in Pugh's death an hour later in a Circleville hospital. Pugh's mangled body was found near the bottom of the bridge, which he was attempting to cross when struck by a train.

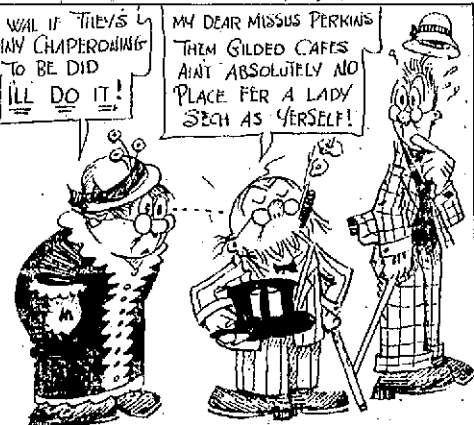

A man named Wood Thomas, a fisherman, it is said, saw the accident and Roadmaster G. W. Eckhardt of Chillicothe left Saturday morning for Circleville to make a full investigation of the fatality, which took place at Dorney, located just this side of Circleville. Pugh's home is in Haverhill and he was a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Pugh, of Haverhill. He was also a brother of Alva Pugh, employed as an elevator man in the First National bank building. He received the first news of the tragic death that had befallen his brother early last night. Pugh had secured work as a night engineer at a plant near Circleville and was on his way there when run down and killed. According to word given out at N. & W. division headquarters in East Portsmouth Saturday it is not known what train proved a messenger of death to Pugh, who was quite well known in this city and was a hard working, industrious man.

It is believed that the first section of freight train No. 86 ran down Pugh as he was crossing a small bridge at Dorney. When the body was found N. & W. officials were notified at once of the accident.
